INTRODUCTION

The Biography of John Ford. If the greatness of many of the Elizabethans were to be estimated by the amount of biographical material left by them as footprints on the sands of time, a mighty reconsideration would have to be made of our critical estimates of many leading writers. Of even the glory of British letters himself what do we know, save that he was born at Stratford, was a player and a dramatist in London, bought certain properties in his native town, and died there in his 53rd year? Literary men and, most of all, playwrights, were in those days looked askance at. The world of that day reserved its biographic favours for the warriors and the statesmen and the navigators; the men who were thought to be doing something to build up the material greatness of England. Pathetic in the extreme is it to read nowadays the dedication by some of the writers and dramatists to the 'great ones' of their age, in which the men of the pen literally grovelled before the men of the sword and the Senate House. Yet how stands the balance now? The whirligig of time has assuredly brought in his revenges, for these same soldiers and senators would to-day be as absolutely and irrevocably forgotten as are the leaves and flowers of the spacious times of Great Elizabeth, were it not for the mention made of them in connection with the works of those despised writers and dramatists.

INTRODUCTION

The Broken Heart

Ford is no exception to the general rule above quoted. We know very little about him, save that he was born the second son of Thomas Ford, Esq., of Ilsington, in North-west Devonshire, where his paternal ancestors had been established for many generations, and that he was baptized in Ilsington Church, in that county, April 17, 1586. On the mother's side he was the grandson of Lord Chief Justice Popham. Of his early years and education, of his youthful predilections, of his studies and sports we know nothing, save that when 16 he repaired to London and was admitted to the Middle Temple. He appears from some contemporary references to have practised law with a fair measure of success, for he more than once refers to business relations with noblemen, suggestive of intercourse with them of a kind both close and confidential.

His legal vocations, however, did not prevent him engaging in literary work, and in the year 1606 he published Fame's Memorial, an elegiac poem on the death of the Earl of Devonshire, dedicating it to the Countess. This was followed in the same year by a pamphlet entitled Honour Triumphant, in which he sought to vindicate the honour of all fair ladies in the four following dicta: (1) Knights in ladies' service have no free-will; (2) Beauty is the maintainer of valour; (3) A fair lady was never false; (4) Perfect lovers are alone wise.

In 1613 Ford produced a comedy, An Ill Beginning has a Good End, but no information is extant as to how it was received. He was evidently at this time doing a good deal of journeyman dramatic work, cobbling up old plays and adapting them to present wants and conditions.

In 1615 Ford wrote a sketch of his friend, Sir Thomas Overbury, who had been poisoned two years before, at the instance of the infamous Countess of Essex, who had married the Earl of Rochester; and this was followed in 1620 by a prose pamphlet, The Line of Life. It is inconceivable that during the intervening years Ford should have been absolutely silent. That is not in keeping with what is known of his character. Rather is it probable that what he wrote during those years has been lost. Dramatic work and the bulk of secular literature was generally looked upon as so much lumber, to be got out of the way as conveniently as possible.

INTRODUCTION

Ford was not a lover of pleasure, but lived laborious days, and appears to have collaborated, in the first place, with Dekker and Rowley in the Witch of Edmonton, a tragedy based upon the facts in the life of Mother Sawyer, an alleged Elizabethan witch. Two years later the masque of The Sun’s Darling, by Ford and Dekker, was played at the Cockpit. This composition, however, must be regarded as being more in the style of Dekker than Ford. In 1628 our dramatist had his extant play, The Lover’s Melancholy, acted at the Blackfriars and Globe theatres. The success was sufficient to spur him on to further endeavours. Though he unquestionably had written plays prior to this, whether it was that they had not succeeded, or had not come up to his own standard, certain it is that after this date his style underwent a change for the better. The Lover’s Melancholy is a play which many think tedious and wearisome, and yet to other minds this very characteristic is its recommendation, for thereby the play of motive and of emotion is so strikingly brought out. Palador and Eroclea, Menaphon and Thamasta, Amethus and Cleophilas are finely contrasted types, each one of which will repay study.

We have no exact record as to the dates of composition of the next three plays. 'Tis Pity She's a Whore, The Broken Heart, and Love's Own Sacrifice were all printed in 1633, and Perkin Warbeck in 1634. In all probability the popularity accruing from The Lover’s Melancholy had stimulated Ford’s genius, and he wrote these noble dramas in rapid succession while the inspiration was upon him. Certainly every one of them is of a high order of excellence. The first-named, 'Tis Pity She’s a Whore, despite its unpleasant title, has always been popular, the characters of Giovanni and Annabella being among the greatest and the most impressive in Elizabethan drama. The theme, although it deals with the repulsive topic of the love of a brother and sister, is so skilfully treated by Ford that we sympathise and condone rather than reprobate and condemn the sin of the hapless pair. The catastrophe is solemn and affecting, Ford rising to a height of true tragic sublimity he never equalled elsewhere. Love’s Sacrifice is a strong play, but the subject is once more ‘offensive,’ to quote Professor Saintsbury’s apt designation of the theme, and all the strength of treatment which Ford lavishes on the piece cannot do away with the feeling left in the mind that such subjects are not pleasant reading. Albeit the characters of Bianca and Fernando, the Duke Caraffa and his sister Fiormonda, are vividly portrayed, our latter-day sensibilities shrink from such a banquet of horrors as is here provided.

In all, sixteen plays are attributed to Ford, either writing alone or in collaboration. Of these several, such as Beauty in a Trance, The London Merchant, The Royal Comedy, An Ill Beginning has a Good End, all written by himself, were destroyed by the vandal hand of Warburton’s cook; while he appears also to have written in conjunction with Dekker, Webster, Rowley, many masques, some of which have been preserved, but others have perished.

The Broken Heart—Date of Composition. In all likelihood the play to which we are about to devote our attention was written about the year 1628. It was produced by the ‘King’s Servants’ at the Blackfriars Theatre in 1629, although there has always been a doubt as to which play—the Broken Heart or Love’s Sacrifice, which was produced by the ‘Queen’s Servants’ at the Phoenix—had priority of composition. In the latter there are certain indications which would lead us to conclude that it had been written first. The ‘women anticks,’ which were alluded to in Love’s Sacrifice (Act III., Sc. 2), were those French women who first acted female parts in London in November, 1629, though under a storm of disapproval from the Puritans; while they were also very distinctly referred to in one of Bassanes’ violent speeches in the Broken Heart (III. ii., 157). The play was published in 1633 by Hugh Beeston.

Sources of the Play.—The sources of the play are probably some well-known contemporary novel translated from the Italian and published about this time. Of these there were a very large number, and the fact is by no means extraordinary that it has fallen entirely out of ken. True, the Prologue says that the incidents are based on fact—

‘What may be here thought “Fiction,” when time’s youth
Wanted some riper years, was known A Truth.’

Mr. Ward does not incline to take the view that this must be read literally. There I must be permitted with all deference to disagree with one whose authority I only dispute with many misgivings, and not without the closest investigation. I feel, however, that these two lines are manifestly specialised, being _apropos_ of nothing else if they do not disclose an intention which the author goes out of his way to state. With the next sentence in Mr. Ward’s reference to Ford ( _English Dramatic Literature_, vol. iii. p. 79) I am thoroughly in accord. ‘Either Ford or the novelist from whom he borrowed made little account of historical probability in choosing Sparta as the scene of a love-tragedy which savours of Mediæval Italy.’

The Broken Heart

The Characters of the Play.—In all probability Ford, if he took his incidents from life, had definite personages in view as the prototypes of the characters he pouredayed. This, perhaps, explains the extraordinary vividness wherewith some of the characters are limned, whereas others are little more than outlines.

Calantha.—One naturally associates, during the first part of the play, the ‘Broken Heart’ with the injured and dejected yet noble-minded Penthea. Her troubles and sorrows are infinitely more acute at that stage than those of Calantha, whose is the ‘Broken Heart’ intended by the author to be represented in the dénouement of the play. Yet up to the third scene of Act IV. she was rocked in the cradle of felicity, until she almost believed that evil fought shy of her. Further, she appears very little in the play until the last Act. In the first Act she only appears but once and speaks only twice at any length. In Act II. she again only appears in Scene 2 and only speaks four times, on each occasion scarcely a line; while in Act III. she enters Scene 3 only to make one long speech. In Scene 5 of the same Act she has a strongly dramatic interview with Penthea, which is one of the great situations of the play, yet here Penthea does all the talking, Calantha replying in sentences little more than monosyllables. In the fourth Act Calantha begins to take more share in the action of the play and contracts herself to Ithocles; but it is not until Act V. that she really rises to any great height of tragic passion. That Act is virtually monopolised by Calantha. In revenge for having compelled his sister Penthea to marry Bassanes in place of Orgilus, to whom she was contracted and whom she loved, Ithocles, the betrothed of Calantha, has been slain by Orgelus. Calantha, however, prepares for her Coronation, and when this has been accomplished she solemnly weds the dead body of Ithocles by placing the royal ring upon its finger, and then falls dead beside the corpse of her lover.

INTRODUCTION

The scene which ends the play is virtually that towards which the whole action of the drama moves. Calantha's character up to the fifth Act is limned in subdued colours, so that the effect may be all the greater by contrast, when the time comes for her to rise to the height of her desperate resolution to fulfil the answer of the oracle of Delphi that—

'When youth is ripe and Age from time doth part
The LIFELESS TRUNK shall wed the BROKEN HEART.'

The character of Calantha is a very complex one, and Ford shows skill in revealing its various qualities. Her pride of birth in showing Ithocles how much she stooped from her royal station when she accepted him as her lover; her womanly diffidence in not revealing her whole heart or her intentions to Penthea when the dying woman came to plead the cause of her brother Ithocles; her love of state and pomp, and her desire that all things should be done in accordance with ancient custom, are finely portrayed. In this character all Ford’s power of depicting the solemn pathos of a great nature overwhelmed by ‘the shock of Destiny’ is notably in evidence.

Penethea was the injured sister of Ithocles, and was forced by him to marry Bassanes, when her whole heart was given to Orgilus. From that hour she undergoes a living martyrdom. Her husband is insanely jealous, and though she is pure as an angel, he suspects her and watches her closely, laying traps to ensnare her, until she resolves to put an end to her life by starvation. She has two interviews with her former lover Orgilus, in which the native nobility of her character comes out. While condoling with Orgilus over his disappointed hopes, she tells him that rather than do aught derogatory to her vows as the wife of Bassanes, she would sooner see him (Orgilus) dead at her feet. Penethea’s character is evidently drawn from life. For noble devotion of purpose, for high-souled morality, for unwavering desire to know the right and to do it, Penethea is worthy of being placed beside Isabella in Measure for Measure and Cordelia in King Lear. She moves through The Broken Heart like the music of some dulcet but distant dirge, which reveals by suggestion what is about to happen.

Ithocles and Orgilus are best contrasted. The former is an impulsive, good-natured, brave, and noble-spirited man who does things without consideration and repents at leisure. He realised the terrible mistake he had made in compelling his sister to marry Bassanes, who was egregiously unsuited to her, and he fain would have made up to Orgilus for the injury he had inflicted on him. But, alas, it was now too late, and his efforts to win the friendship of Orgilus only resemble the actions of a man catching at straws to save himself from drowning. He meets his fate at the hands of Orgilus with a calm courage that wins our sympathy. Orgilus, on the other hand, is the portrait of a man whose whole nature has received a moral twist. Originally a true-hearted, generous-minded gentleman, since Penthea has been torn from him and given to Bassanes, he has become moody, suspicious, revengeful, and desperate. Not all the protestations of regret and regard by Ithocles can win him from his purpose that if Penthea dies the life of the brother shall pay forfeit for that of the sister. He also meets his fate with a calm courage that struck amazement into his executioners. His dying words are typical of his nature—

‘So falls the standard
Of my prerogative in being a creature.
A mist hangs o’er mine eyes, the sun’s bright splendour
Is clouded in an everlasting shadow.
Welcome thou ice that sett’st about my heart,
No heat can ever thaw thee.

[Dies.]

Bassanes, the husband of Penthea, is a well-drawn portrait of the jealous husband. Othello is of an altogether different type from this man, whose insane jealousy even becomes humorous after a time. To Bassanes, however, the whole situation is one of tremendous danger. In everything around he sees a possible source of temptation to his wife to be untrue, as though anything could tempt the noble Penthea even for a moment to stoop to folly. Bassanes is, of course, utterly unworthy of Penthea, and probably to emphasise the danger of unequal marriages this remarkable pair of characters was drawn.

The other dramatis personae are little better than lay-figures. Ford always expended his strength on the leading characters and left the others very much to take care of themselves. Crotolon, who is a Counsellor of State as well as the father of Orgilus, has at times a smack of Polonius in his speeches, a feature also traceable in the moral aphorisms of Armostes, another Counsellor, as for example when he addresses the fiery Ithocles—

XV

‘Contain yourself, my lord; Ixion, aiming
To embrace Juno, bosom’d but a cloud,
And begat Centaurs; ’tis a useful moral;
Ambition, hatched in clouds of mere opinion,
Proves but in birth a prodigy.’

Prophilus, the friend of Ithocles, and the husband of Euphranœa, the daughter of Crotolon and the sister of Orgilus, is drawn in accurate proportion to the other characters major and minor of the play; so, too, Tecnicus is excellently limned, the nature, ideas, and aspirations of an ancient philosopher being capitally maintained throughout. The same may be said of the character of Nearchus, Prince of Argos, the vanity and pride of birth in him being strongly and well contrasted with the unconscious nobility of soul in Ithocles. Relief is imparted to the piece by the humorous portraits of the courtiers Hemophil and Groneas, whose conceit and cowardice are thrown into amusing relief, as also in the ‘duenna’—if the word might be used of duties discharged long before the days of Spanish marital caution.

The play as a whole is a strong one, and takes rank as Ford’s best. There are a few lines in it that are somewhat unintelligible, owing to the corrupt condition of some parts of the text; but generally speaking, the drama has been preserved to us in a remarkably accurate state. It has already been published in Weber’s edition of Ford’s works, in Routledge’s edition of Massinger and Ford, and also in one of the issues of ‘Dodsley’s Old Plays.’

TO THE MOST WORTHY DESERVER OF THE NOBLEST TITLES IN HONOUR

WILLIAM, LORD CRAVEN, BARON OF HAMPSTEAD-MARSHALL

My Lord,—The glory of a great name, acquired by a greater glory of action, hath in all ages lived the truest chronicle to his own memory. In the practice of which argument, your growth to perfection, even in youth, hath appeared so sincere, so unflattering a penman, that posterity cannot with more delight, read the merit of noble endeavours, than noble endeavours merit thanks from posterity, to be read with delight. Many nations, many eyes have been witnesses of your deserts, and loved them; be pleased, then, with the freedom of your own name, to admit one, amongst all, particularly into the list of such as honour a fair example of nobility.
There is a kind of humble ambition, not uncommendable,
when the silence of study breaks forth into discourse, coveting rather encouragement than applause; yet herein, censure commonly, is too severe an auditor!
without the moderation of an able patronage. I have ever been slow in courtship of greatness, not ignorant of such defects as are frequent to opinion; but the justice of your inclination to industry, emboldens my weakness of confidence to relish an experience of your mercy as many brave dangers have tasted of your courage. Your Lordship strove to be known to the world when the world knew you least, by voluntary but excellent attempts; like allowance I plead of being known to your lordship (in this low presumption), by tendering, to a favourable entertainment, a devotion offered from a heart that can as truly sensible of any least respect as ever profess the owner in my best, my readiest services, a lover of your natural love to virtue.

SCENE—Sparta
PROLOGUE

Our scene is Sparta. He whose best of art
Hath drawn this piece, calls it the Broken Heart.
The title lends no expectation here
Of apish laughter, or of some lame jeer
At place or persons; no pretended clause
Of jests fit for a brothel, courts applause
From vulgar admiration: such low songs,
Tuned to unchaste ears, suit not modest tongues.
The virgin-sisters then deserved fresh bays
When innocence and sweetness crowned their lays;
Then vices gasped for breath, whose whole commerce
Was whipped to exile by unblushing verse.
This law we keep in our presentment now,
Not to take freedom more than we allow;
What may be here thought Fiction, when time's youth
Wanted some riper years, was known A Truth:
In which, if words have clothed the subject right,
You may partake a pity, with delight.
THE BROKEN HEART

ACT I

SCENE I

A Room in Crotolon's House.

Enter Crotolon and Orgilus.

Crot. Dally not further; I will know the reason
That speeds thee to this journey.
Org. 'Reason?' good sir,
I can yield many.
Crot. Give me one, a good one;
Such I expect, and ere we part must have:
'Athens!' pray, why to Athens? you intend not
To kick against the world, turn cynic, stoic,
Or read the logic-lecture, or become
An Areopagite, and judge in cases
Touching the commonwealth; for, as I take it,
The budding of your chin cannot prognosticate
So grave an honour.
ACT I. SC. I.

The Broken Heart

Org. All this I acknowledge.

Crot. You do! then, son, if books and love of knowledge
Inflame you to this travel, here in Sparta
You may as freely study.

Org. 'Tis not that, sir.

Crot. Not that, sir! As a father, I command thee
To acquaint me with the truth.

Org. Thus, I obey you.

After so many quarrels, as dissension,
Fury, and rage had broached in blood, and sometimes
With death to such confederates, as sided
With now dead Thrasus and yourself, my lord;

Our present king, Amyclas, reconciled
Your eager swords, and sealed a gentle peace:
Friends you professed yourselves; which to confirm,
A resolution for a lasting league
Betwixt your families, was entertained,
By joining, in a Hymenean bond,
Me and the fair Penthea, only daughter
To Thrasus.

Crot. What of this?

Org. Much, much, dear sir.
A freedom of converse, an interchange
Of holy and chaste love, so fixed our souls
In a firm growth of union, that no time
Can eat into the pledge:—we had enjoyed
The sweets our vows expected, had not cruelty
The Broken Heart

Prevented all those triumphs we prepared for,
   By Thrasus his untimely death.

_Crot. Most certain._

_Org. From this time sprouted up that poisonous stalk
   Of aconite, whose ripened fruit hath ravished
   All health, all comfort of a happy life:
   For Ithocles, her brother, proud of youth,
   And prouder in his power, nourished closely
   The memory of former discontents,
   To glory in revenge. By cunning partly,
   Partly by threats, he woos at once and forces
   His virtuous sister to admit a marriage
   With Bassanes, a nobleman, in honour
   And riches, I confess, beyond my fortunes—

_Crot. All this is no sound reason to importune
   My leave for thy departure._

_Org. Now it follows.
   Beauteous Penthea, wedded to this torture
   By an insulting brother, being secretly
   Compelled to yield her virgin freedom up
   To him, who never can usurp her heart,
   Before contracted mine; is now so yoked
   To a most barbarous thraldom, misery,
   Affliction, that he savours not humanity,
   Whose sorrow melts not into more than pity,
   In hearing but her name.

_Crot. As how, pray?_

_Org. Bassanes,
ACT I. SC. 1.

The man that calls her wife, considers truly
What heaven of perfections he is lord of,
By thinking fair Penthea his; this thought
Begets a kind of monster-love, which love
Is nurse unto a fear so strong, and servile,
As brands all dotage with a jealousy.
All eyes who gaze upon that shrine of beauty,
He doth resolve, do homage to the miracle;
Some one, he is assured, may now or then
(If opportunity but sort) prevail:
So much, out of a self-unworthiness,
His fears transport him!—not that he finds cause
In her obedience, but his own distrust.

_Crot._ You spin out your discourse.

_Org._ My griefs are violent—
For knowing how the maid was heretofore
Courted by me, his jealousies grow wild
That I should steal again into her favours,
And undermine her virtues; which the gods
Know, I nor dare, nor dream of: hence, from hence,
I undertake a voluntary exile;
First, by my absence to take off the cares
Of jealous Bassanes; but chiefly, sir,
To free Penthea from a hell on earth:
Lastly, to lose the memory of something,
Her presence makes to live in me afresh.

_Crot._ Enough, my Orgilus, enough. To Athens,
The Broken Heart

ACT I. SC. I.

I give a full consent;—alas, good lady!—
We shall hear from thee often?

Org. Often.

Crot. See,

Thy sister comes to give a farewell.

Enter Euphranea.

Euph. Brother!

Org. Euphranea, thus upon thy cheeks I print

A brother's kiss; more careful of thine honour,

Thy health, and thy well-doing, than my life.

Before we part, in the presence of our father,
I must prefer a suit to you.

Euph. You may stile it,

My brother, a command.

Org. That you will promise

Never to pass to any man, however

Worthy, your faith, till, with our father's leave,
I give a free consent.

Crot. An easy motion!

I'll promise for her, Orgilus.

Org. Your pardon;

Euphranea's oath must yield me satisfaction.

Euph. By Vesta's sacred fires, I swear.

Crot. And I,

By great Apollo's beams, join in the vow;
Not, without thy allowance, to bestow her
On any living.
ACT I. SC. 1.

The Broken Heart

Org. Dear Euphranea,
Mistake me not; far, far 'tis from my thought,
As far from any wish of mine, to hinder
Preferment to an honourable bed,
Or fitting fortune; thou art young and handsome;
And 'twere injustice,—more, a tyranny,
Not to advance thy merit: trust me, sister,
It shall be my first care to see thee matched
As may become thy choice, and our contents. 130
I have your oath.

Euph. You have; but mean you, brother,
To leave us, as you say?

Crot. Aye, aye, Euphranea.
He has just grounds direct him; I will prove
A father and a brother to thee.

Euph. Heaven
Does look into the secrets of all hearts:
Gods! you have mercy with you, else——

Crot. Doubt nothing, 140
Thy brother will return in safety to us.

Org. Souls sunk in sorrows never are without them;
They change fresh airs, but bear their griefs about them. [Exeunt.

SCENE II

A Room in the Palace.

Flourish. Enter Amyclas, Armostes, Prophlius, Courtiers and Attendants.

Amyc. The Spartan gods are gracious; our humility
    Shall bend before their altars, and perfume
    Their temples with abundant sacrifice.
See, lords, Amyclas, your old king, is entering Into his youth again! I shall shake off
This silver badge of age, and change this snow
For hairs as gay as are Apollo's locks;
Our heart leaps in new vigour.

Arm. May old time
    Run back to double your long life, great sir!

Amyc. It will, it must, Armostes; thy bold nephew,
    Death-braving Ithocles, brings to our gates
    Triumphs and peace upon his conquering sword.
Laconia is a monarchy at length;
    Hath in this latter war trod under foot
Messene's pride; Messene bows her neck
To Lacedemon's royalty. O, 'twas
A glorious victory, and doth deserve
More than a chronicle; a temple, lords,
A temple to the name of Ithocles.
Where didst thou leave him, Prophlius?

II
ACT I. SC. 2.

The Broken H

Pro. At Pephon,
    Most gracious sovereign; twenty of the noblest
Of the Messenians there attend your pleasure,
For such conditions as you shall propose,
In settling peace, and liberty of life.
Amyc. When comes your friend the general?
Pro. He promised
    To follow with all speed convenient.

Enter Crotolon, Calantha, Euphranea, Christalla, Philema with a garland.

Amyc. Our daughter! dear Calantha, the happy nev
    The conquest of Messene, hath already Enriched thy knowledge.
Cal. With the circumstance
    And manner of the fight, related faithfully
By Prophilus himself—but, pray, sir, tell me,
How doth the youthful general demean
His actions in these fortunes?
Pro. Excellent princess,
    Your own fair eyes may soon report a truth
Unto your judgment, with what moderation,
Calmness of nature, measure, bounds, and limit
Of thankfulness and joy, he doth digest
Such amplitude of his success, as would,
In others, moulded of a spirit less clear,
Advance them to comparison with heaven:
    But Ithocles—

The Broken Heart

Act I. Sc. 2.

Cal. Your friend—

Pro. He is so, madam,
   In which the period of my fate consists—
   He, in this firmament of honour, stands—
   Like a star fixed, not moved with any thunder
   Of popular applause, or sudden lightning
   Of self-opinion; he hath served his country,
   And thinks 'twas but his duty.

Crot. You describe
   A miracle of man.

Amyc. Such, Crotolon, [Flourish.
   On forfeit of a king's word, thou wilt find him.
   Hark, warning of his coming! all attend him.

Enter Ithocles, ushered in by the Lords, and followed by Hemophil and Groneas.

Amyc. Return into these arms, thy home, thy sanctuary,
   Delight of Sparta, treasure of my bosom,
   Mine own, own Ithocles!

Ith. Your humblest subject.

Arm. Proud of the blood I claim an interest in,
   As brother to thy mother, I embrace thee,
   Right noble nephew.

Ith. Sir, your love's too partial.

Crot. Our country speaks by me, who by thy valour,
   Wisdom, and service, shares in this great action;
   Returning thee, in part of thy due merits,
   A general welcome.
ACT I. SC. 2.

The Broken Heart

Ith. You exceed in bounty.

Cal. Christalla, Philema, the chaplet. [Takes the chaplet from them.] Ithocles,
Upon the wings of fame, the singular
And chosen fortune of an high attempt,
Is borne so past the view of common sight,
That I myself, with mine own hands, have wrought
To crown thy temples, this Provincial garland;
Accept, wear, and enjoy it as our gift
Deserved, not purchased.

Ith. You are a royal maid.

Amyc. She is, in all, our daughter.

Ith. Let me blush,
Acknowledging how poorly I have served,
What nothings I have done, compared with the honours
Heaped on the issue of a willing mind;
In that lay mine ability, that only:
For who is he so sluggish from his birth,
So little worthy of a name or country,
That owes not out of gratitude for life
A debt of service, in what kind soever,
Safety, or counsel of the commonwealth
Requires, for payment?

Cal. He speaks truth.

Ith. Whom heaven
Is pleased to style victorious, there, to such,
Applause runs madding, like the drunken priests

In Bacchus’ sacrifices, without reason,
Voicing the leader-on a demi-god;
Whenas, indeed, each common soldier’s blood
Drops down as current coin in that hard purchase,
As his, whose much more delicate condition
Hath sucked the milk of ease: judgment commands,
But resolution executes. I use not,
Before this royal presence, these fit slights,
As in contempt of such as can direct;
My speech hath other end; not to attribute
All praise to one man’s fortune, which is strengthened
By many hands:—for instance, here is Propilus,
A gentleman (I cannot flatter truth)
Of much desert; and, though in other rank,
Both Hemophil and Groneas were not missing
To wish their country’s peace; for, in a word,
All there did strive their best, and ’twas our duty.

Amyc. Courtiers turn soldiers!—We vouchsafe our hand;

[Here. and Gron. kiss his hand.

Observe your great example.

Hem. With all diligence.

Gron. Obsequiously and hourly.

Amyc. Some repose

After these toils is needful. We must think on Conditions for the conquered; they expect them.
On!—Come, my Ithocles.

Euph. Sir, with your favour.

I need not a supporter.
ACT I. SC. 2.

Pro. Fate instructs me.

Exit Amyclas attended; Ithocles, Calantha, &c.—As Christalla and Philema are following Calantha, they are detained by Hemophil and Groneas.

Chris. With me?
Phil. Indeed I dare not stay.
Hem. Sweet lady,
    Soldiers are blunt,—your lip. [Kisses her.]
Chris. Fye, this is rudeness;
     You went not hence such creatures.
Gron. Spirit of valour
    Is of a mounting nature.
Phil. It appears so.—
     Pray [now], in earnest, how many men apiece
     Have you two been the death of?
Gron. ’Faith, not many;
     We were composed of mercy.
Hem. For our daring,
     You heard the general’s approbation
     Before the king.
Chris. You ‘wished your country’s peace;’
     That showed your charity: where are your spoils,
     Such as the soldier fights for?
Phil. They are coming.
Chris. By the next carrier, are they not?
Gron. Sweet Philema,
The Broken Heart

ACT I. SC. 2.

When I was in the thickest of mine enemies,
Slashing off one man’s head, another’s nose,
Another’s arms and legs,—

Phil. And all together.

Gron. Then I would with a sigh remember thee,
And cry, ‘Dear Philema, ’tis for thy sake
I do these deeds of wonder!’—dost not love me,
With all thy heart now?

Phil. Now, as heretofore.
I have not put my love to use; the principal
Will hardly yield an interest.

Gron. By Mars,
I’ll marry thee!

Phil. By Vulcan, you’re foresworn,
Except my mind do alter strangely.

Gron. One word.

Chris. You lie beyond all modesty;—forbear me.

Hem. I’ll make thee mistress of a city, ’tis
Mine own by conquest.

Chris. By petition!—sue for’t
In forma pauperis.—’City?’ kennel.—Gallants!
Off with your feathers, put on aprons, gallants;
Learn to reel, thrum, or trim a lady’s dog,
And be good quiet souls of peace, hobgoblins!

Hem. Christalla!

Chris. Practice to drill hogs, in hope
To share in the acorns.—Soldiers! corncutters,
But not so valiant; they oft times draw blood,

Which you durst never do. When you have practis'd
More wit, or more civility, we'll rank you
I' th' list of men; till then, brave things at arms,
Dare not to speak to us,—most potent Groneas! 180

Phil. And Hemophil the hardy—at your services.

[Exeunt Chris. and Phil.

Gron. They scorn us as they did before we went.

Hem. Hang them, let us scorn them; and be revenged.

Gron. Shall we?

Hem. We will; and when we slight them thus,
Instead of following them, they'll follow us;
It is a woman's nature.

Gron. 'Tis a scurvy one.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III

The Gardens of the Palace. A Grove.

Enter Tecnicus, and Orgilus, disguised, like one of his Scholars.

Tec. Tempt not the stars, young man, thou canst not play
With the severity of fate; this change
Of habit and disguise in outward view
Hides not the secrets of thy soul within thee
From their quick-piercing eyes, which dive at all times

18
he Broken Heart

Down to thy thoughts: in thy aspect I note
A consequence of danger.

Grave Tecnicus, without foredooming destiny,
Under thy roof to ease my silent grieves,
By applying to my hidden wounds the balm
Of thy oracular lectures: if my fortune
Run such a crooked by-way as to wrest
My steps to ruin, yet thy learned precepts
Shall call me back and set my footings straight.
I will not court the world.

Ah, Orgilus,
Neglects in young men of delights and life,
Run often to extremities; they care not
For harms to others, who contemn their own.

But I, most learned artist, am not so much
At odds with nature, that I grudge the thrift
Of any true deserver; nor doth malice
Of present hopes, so check them with despair,
As that I yield to thought of more affliction
Than what is incident to frailty: wherefore
Impute not this retiréd course of living
Some little time, to any other cause
Than what I justly render; the information
Of an unsettled mind; as the effect
Must clearly witness.

Spirit of truth inspire thee!
On these conditions I conceal thy change,
ACT 1. SC. 3.

The Broken Heart

And willingly admit thee for an auditor.—
I'll to my study. [Exit.

Org. I to contemplations,
In these delightful walks.—Thus metamorphosed,
I may without suspicion hearken after
Penthea’s usage, and Euphranea’s faith.
Love, thou art full of mystery! the deities
Themselves are not secure, in searching out
The secrets of those flames, which, hidden, waste
A breast, made tributary to the laws
Of beauty; physic yet hath never found.
A remedy to cure a lover's wound.—
Ha! who are those that cross yon private walk
Into the shadowing grove, in amorous foldings?

Prophilus and Euphranea pass by, arm in arm, and whispering.

My sister; O, my sister! 'tis Euphranea
With Prophilus; supported too! I would
It were an apparition! Prophilus
Is Ithocles his friend: it strangely puzzles me.—

Re-enter Prophilus and Euphranea.

Again! help me my book; this scholar's habit
Must stand my privilege; my mind is busy,
Mine eyes and ears are open.

[Walks aside, pretending to read.

20
The Broken Heart

ACT I. SC. 3.

Pro. Do not waste
The span of this stolen time, lent by the gods
For precious use, in niceness. Bright Euphranea,
Should I repeat old vows, or study new,
For purchase of belief to my desires.—

Org. Desires!

Pro. My service, my integrity.—

Org. That's better.

Pro. I should but repeat a lesson
Oft conn'd without a prompter, but thine eyes:
My love is honourable.—

Org. So was mine
To my Penthea; chastely honourable.

Pro. Nor wants there more addition to my wish
Of happiness, than having thee a wife;
Already sure of Ithocles, a friend
Firm and unalterable.

Org. But a brother
More cruel than the grave.

Euph. What can you look for
In answer to your noble protestations,
From an unskilful maid, but language suited
To a divided mind?

Org. Hold out, Euphranea!

Euph. Know, Prophilus, I never undervalued,
From the first time you mention'd worthy love
Your merit, means, or person; it had been
A fault of judgment in me, and a dulness
ACT I. SC. 3.

In my affections, not to weigh and thank
My better stars, that offered me the grace
Of so much blissfulness: for, to speak truth,
The law of my desires kept equal pace
With yours; nor have I left that resolution:
But only, in a word, whatever choice
Lives nearest in my heart, must first procure
Consent, both from my father and my brother,

Ere he can own me his.

Org. She is foresworn else.

Pro. Leave me that task.

Euph. My brother, ere he parted
To Athens, had my oath.

Org. Yes, yes, he had sure.

Pro. I doubt not, with the means the court supplies,
But to prevail at pleasure.

Org. Very likely!

Pro. Meantime, best, dearest, I may build my hopes
On the foundation of thy constant sufferance,
In any opposition.

Euph. Death shall sooner
Divorce life, and the joys I have in living,
Than my chaste vows from truth.

Pro. On thy fair hand
I seal the like.

Org. There is no faith in woman.
Passion, O be contained!—my very heart-strings
Are on the tenters.
The Broken Heart

Euph. We are overheard.
Cupid protect us! 'twas a stirring, sir,
Of some one near.

Pro. Your fears are needless, lady;
None have access into these private pleasures,
Except some near in court, or bosom student
From Tecnicus his Oratory; granted
By special favour lately from the king
Unto the grave philosopher.

Euph. Methinks
I hear one talking to himself—I see him.

Pro. 'Tis a poor scholar; as I told you, lady.

Org. I am discovered.—Say it; is it possible,

[Half aloud to himself, as if studying.
With a smooth tongue, a leering countenance,
Flattery, or force of reason—I come to you, sir—
To turn or to appease the raging sea?
Answer to that.—Your art!—what art? to catch
And hold fast in a net the sun's small atoms?
No, no; they'll out, they'll out; you may as easily
Outrun a cloud driven by a northern blast,

As—fiddle-faddle so! peace, or speak sense.

Euph. Call you this thing a scholar? 'las, he's lunatic.

Pro. Observe him, sweet; 'tis but his recreation.

Org. But will you hear a little? You are so tetchy,
You keep no rule in argument; philosophy
Works not upon impossibilities,
But natural conclusions.—Mew!—absurd!
ACT I. SC. 3.

The Broken Heart

The metaphysics are but speculations
Of the celestial bodies, or such accidents
As not mixt perfectly, in the air engendered;
Appear to us unnatural; that's all.
Prove it;—yet, with a reverence to your gravity,
I'll baulk illiterate sauciness, submitting
My sole opinion to the touch of writers.

Pro. Now let us fall in with him. [They come forward.

Org. Ha, ha, ha!

These apish boys, when they but taste the graces,
And principles of theory, imagine
They can oppose their teachers. Confidence
Leads many into errors,

Pro. By your leave, sir.

Euph. Are you a scholar, friend?

Org. I am, gay creature,

With pardon of your deities, a mushroom
On whom the dew of heaven drops now and then
The sun shines on me too, I thank his beams!
Sometimes I feel their warmth; and eat and sleep

Pro. Does Tecnicus read to thee?

Org. Yes, forsooth,

He is my master surely; yonder door
Opens upon his study.

Pro. Happy creatures!

Such people toil not, sweet, in heats of state,
Nor sink in thaws of greatness: their affections
The Broken Heart

Keep order with the limits of their modesty;
Their love is love of virtue.—What’s thy name?

Org. Aplotes, sumptuous master, a poor wretch.

Euph. Dost thou want anything?

Pro. Lady, a new conceit comes in my thought, and most available for both our comforts.

Euph. My lord,—

Pro. While I endeavour to deserve
Your father’s blessing to our loves, this scholar
May daily at some certain hours attend,
What notice I can write of my success,
Here, in this grove, and give it to your hands;
The like from you to me: so can we never,
Barr’d of our mutual speech, want sure intelligence;
And thus our hearts may talk when our tongues cannot.

Euph. Occasion is most favourable; use it.

Pro. Aplotes, wilt thou wait us twice a day.
At nine i’ the morning, and at four at night,
Here, in this bower, to convey such letters
As each shall send to other? Do it willingly,
Safely, and secretly, and I will furnish
Thy study, or what else thou canst desire.

Org. Jove, make me thankful, thankful, I beseech thee,
Propitious Jove! I will prove sure and trusty:
You will not fail me books?

Pro. Nor ought besides,

Whose pensioner you are.—I’ll tear thy throat out, Son of a cat, ill-looking hounds-head, rip up Thy ulcerous maw, if I but scent a paper, A scroll, but half as big as what can cover A wart upon thy nose, a spot, a pimple, Directed to my lady; it may prove A mystical preparative to lewdness.

Phu. Care shall be had.—I will turn every thread. About me to an eye.—Here’s a sweet life! [Aside

Bass. The city housewives, cunning in the traffic Of chamber merchandise, set all at price By wholesale; yet they wipe their mouths and simper, Coll, kiss, and cry ‘sweetheart,’ and stroke the head Which they have branched; and all is well again! Dull clods of dirt, who dare not feel the rubs Stuck on the forehead.

Phu. ’Tis a villainous world; One cannot hold his own in’t.

Bass. Dames at court Who flaunt in riots, run another bias: Their pleasure heaves the patient ass that suffers Up on the stilts of office, titles, incomes; Promotion justifies the shame, and sues for’t. Poor honour! thou art stabbed, and bleed’st to death By such unlawful hire. The country mistress

Is yet more wary, and in blushes hides
Whatever trespass draws her troth to guilt;
But all are false: on this truth I am bold,
No woman but can fall, and doth, or would.—
Now, for the newest news about the city;
What blab the voices, sirrah?

Phu. O, my lord,
The rarest, quaintest, strangest, tickling news,
That ever——

Bass. Hey-day! up and ride me, rascal!
What is't?

Phu. Forsooth, they say, the king has mew'd
All his gray beard, instead of which is budded
Another of a pure carnation colour,
Speckled with green and russet.

Bass. Ignorant block!

Phu. Yes truly; and 'tis talk'd about the streets,
That since lord Ithocles came home, the lions
Never left roaring, at which noise the bears
Have danced their very hearts out.

Bass. Dance out thine too.

Phu. Besides, lord Orgilus is fled to Athens
Upon a fiery dragon, and 'tis thought
He never can return.

Bass. Grant it, Apollo!

Phu. Moreover, please your lordship, 'tis reported
For certain, that whoever is found jealous
Without apparent proof that's wife is wanton,

Shall be divorced;—but this is but she-news,
I had it from a midwife. I have more yet. 70

Bass. Antick, no more! idiots and stupid fools
Grate my calamities. Why to be fair,
Should yield presumption of a faulty soul—
Look to the doors.

Phu. The horn of plenty crest him! [Aside, and exit.

Bass. Swarms of confusion huddle in my thoughts
In rare distemper.—Beauty! oh, it is
An unmatched blessing, or a horrid curse.
She comes, she comes! so shoots the morning forth,
Spangled with pearls of transparent dew.— 80
The way to poverty is to be rich;
As I in her am wealthy; but for her,
In all contents, a bankrupt.

Enter Penthea and Grausis.

Loved Penthea!
How fares my heart's best joy?

Grau. In sooth not well
She is so over-sad.

Bass. Leave chattering, magpie.—
Thy brother is returned, sweet, safe, and honoured
With a triumphant victory; thou shalt visit him; 90
We will to court, where, if it be thy pleasure,
Thou shalt appear in such a ravishing lustre

Of jewels above value, that the dames
Who brave it there, in rage to be outshined,
Shall hide them in their closets, and unseen
Fret in their tears; whilst every wondering eye
Shall crave none other brightness but thy presence.
Choose thine own recreations; be a queen
Of what delights thou fanciest best, what company,
What place, what times; do anything, do all things
Youth can command, so thou wilt chase these clouds
From the pure firmament of thy fair looks.

Grau. Now, 'tis well said, my lord. What, lady! laugh,
Be merry; time is precious.

Bass. Furies whip thee!

Pen. Alas, my lord! this language to your handmaid
Sounds as would music to the deaf; I need
No braveries, nor cost of art, to draw
The whiteness of my name into offence:
Let such, if any such there are, who covet
A curiosity of admiration,
By laying out their plenty to full view,
Appear in gaudy outsiders; my attires
Shall suit the inward fashion of my mind;
From which, if your opinion, nobly placed,
Change not the livery your words bestow,
My fortunes with my hopes are at the highest.

Bass. This house, methinks, stands somewhat too much inward,
It is too melancholy; we'll remove

What the court: or what thinks my Penthea
In the delightful island we command?
Ripe are as thou canst wish.

Scene. I am no mistress:
Whether you please, I must attend; all ways
Are alike pleasant to me.

Enter. 'Island!' prison;
A prison is as gaiety: we'll no islands;
Marry, out upon 'em! whom shall we see there?
Seagulls, and porpoises, and water-rats,
And crabs, and mews, and dog-fish; goodly gear
For a young lady's dealings,—or an old one's!
On no terms, islands; I'll be stewed first.

Bass. (Aside to Grau.) Grausis.
You are a juggling bawd.—This sadness, sweetest,
Becomes not youthful blood;—I'll have you pounded—
For my sake put on a more cheerful mirth;
Thou'll mar thy cheeks, and make me old in griefs.
Damnable bitch-fox! [To Grausis.

Grau. I am thick of hearing.
Still, when the wind blows southerly.—What think you,
If your fresh lady breed young bones, my lord!
Would not a chopping boy do you good at heart?
But, as you said—

Bass. I'll spit thee on a stake,
Or chop thee into collops! [Aside to Grausis.
The Broken Heart

ACT II. SC. 1.

Grau. Pray, speak louder.
    Sure, sure the wind blows south still.
Pen. Thou prat’st madly.
Bass. ’Tis very hot; I sweat extremely.—Now?

Enter Phulas.

Phu. A herd of lords, sir.
Bass. Ha!
Phu. A flock of ladies.
Bass. Where?
Phu. Shoals of horses.
Bass. Peasant, how?
Phu. Caroches.
    In drifts—the one enter, the other stand without, sir,
    And now I vanish.

[Exit.

Enter Prophilus, Hemophil, Groneas, Christalla and Philema.

Pro. Noble Bassanes!
Bass. Most welcome, Prophilus: ladies, gentlemen,
    To all, my heart is open; you all honour me.—
    (A tympany swells in my head already) [Aside.
    Honour me bountifully.—How they flutter,
    Wagtails and jays together! [Aside.
Pro. From your brother,
    By virtue of your love to him, I require
    Your instant presence, fairest.
Pen. He is well, sir?

Pro. The gods preserve him ever! Yet, dear beauty, 170
    I find some alteration in him lately,
    Since his return to Sparta.—My good lord,
    I pray, use no delay.

Bass. We had not needed
    An invitation, if his sister's health
    Had not fallen into question.—Haste Penthea,
    Slack not a minute; lead the way, good Prophilus,
    I'll follow step by step.

Pro. Your arm, fair madam.

[Exeunt all but Bassanes and Grauisis.

Bass. One word with your old bawdryship: thou hadst better 180
    Railed at the saints thou worshipp'st than have thwarted
    My will; I'll use thee cursedly.

Graus. You doat,
    You are beside yourself. A politician
    In jealousy? no, you're too gross, too vulgar.
    Pish, teach not me my trade; I know my cue:
    My crossing you sinks me into her trust,
    By which I shall know all; my trade's a sure one.

Bass. Forgive me, Grauisis, 'twas consideration
    I relished not; but have a care now. 190

Graus. Fear not,
    I am no new-come-to't.

Bass. Thy life's upon it.
    And so is mine. My agonies are infinite. [Exeunt.

SCENE II

The Palace. Ithocles' Apartment.

Enter Ithocles.

th. Ambition! 'tis of viper's breed; it gnaws
A passage through the womb that gave it motion.
Ambition, like a seeled dove, mounts upward,
Higher and higher still, to perch on clouds,
But tumbles headlong down with heavier ruin.
So squibs and crackers fly into the air,
Then, only breaking with a noise, they vanish
In stench and smoke. Morality, applied
To timely practice, keeps the soul in tune,
At whose sweet music all our actions dance: 10
But this is formed of books, and school-tradition;
It physics not the sickness of a mind
Broken with griefs: strong fevers are not eased
With counsel, but with best receipts, and means:
Means, speedy means, and certain; that's the cure.

Enter Armostes and Crotolon.

irm. You stick, lord Crotolon, upon a point
Too nice and too unnecessary; Prophilus
Is every way desertful. I am confident
ACT II. SC. 2.

Your wisdom is too ripe to need instruction
From your son's tutelage.

Crot. Yet not so ripe,
My lord Armostes, that it dares to dote
Upon the painted meat of smooth persuasion,
Which tempts me to a breach of faith.

Ith. Not yet
Resolved, my lord? Why, if your son's consent
Be so available, we'll write to Athens
For his repair to Sparta: the king's hand
Will join with our desires; he has been moved to 't.

Arm. Yes, and the king himself importuned Crotolon
For a dispatch.

Crot. Kings may command; their wills
Are laws not to be questioned.

Ith. By this marriage
You knit a union so devout, so hearty,
Between your loves to me, and mine to yours
As if mine own blood had an interest in it;
For Prophilus is mine, and I am his.

Crot. My lord, my lord!

Ith. What, good sir? speak your thought.

Crot. Had this sincerity been real once,
My Orgilus had not been now unwived,
Nor your lost sister buried in a bride-bed:
Your uncle here, Armostes, knows this truth;
For had your father Thrasus lived— but peace
Dwell in his grave! I have done.
The Broken Heart

Arm. You are bold and bitter.

Ith. He presses home the injury; it smarts— [Aside.
No reprehensions, uncle; I deserve them.
Yet, gentle sir, consider what the heat
Of an unsteady youth, a giddy brain,
Green indiscretion, flattery of greatness,
Rawness of judgment, wilfulness in folly,
Thoughts vagrant as the wind, and as uncertain,
Might lead a boy in years to:—'twas a fault,
A capital fault; for then I could not dive
Into the secrets of commanding love;
Since when experience, by the extremes in others,
Hath forced me to collect—and, trust me, Crotolon,
I will redeem those wrongs with any service
Your satisfaction can require for current.

Arm. The acknowledgment is satisfaction:
What would you more?

Crot. I am conquered: if Euphranea
Herself admit the motion, let it be so;
I doubt not my son's liking.

Ith. Use my fortunes,
Life, power, sword and heart, all are your own.

Arm. The princess, with your sister.

Enter Bassanes, Prophillus, Calantha, Pentea, Euphranea, Christalla, Philema, and Grausis.

Cal. I present you
ACT II. SC. 2.

The Broken Heart

A stranger here in court, my lord; for did not Desire of seeing you draw her abroad,
We had not been made happy in her company.

Ith. You are a gracious princess.—Sister, wedlock
Holds too severe a passion in your nature,
Which can engross all duty to your husband,
Without attendance on so dear a mistress.
'Tis not my brother's pleasure, I presume.

[To Bassanes.

T' immure her in a chamber.

Bass. 'Tis her will;
She governs her own hours. Noble Ithocles,
We thank the gods for your success and welfare:
Our lady has of late been indisposed,
Else we had waited on you with the first.

Ith. How does Penthea now?

Pen. You best know, brother,
From whom my health and comforts are derived.

Bass. [aside.] I like the answer well; 'tis sad and modest.
There may be tricks yet, tricks—Have an eye,
Grausis!

Cal. Now, Crotolon, the suit we joined in must not Fall by too long demur.

Crot. 'Tis granted, princess,
For my part.

Arm. With condition, that his son
Favour the contract.
The Broken Heart

Cal. Such delay is easy.
    The joys of marriage make thee, Prophilus,
    A proud deserver of Euphranea's love,
    And her of thy desert!

Pro. Most sweetly gracious!

Bass. The joys of marriage are the heaven on earth,
    Life's paradise, great princess, the soul's quiet,
    Sinews of concord, earthly immortality,
    Eternity of pleasures;—no restoratives
    Like to a constant woman!—(but where is she?)
    'Twould puzzle all the gods, but to create Such a new monster) (aside)—I can speak by proof,
    For the rest in Elysium; 'tis my happiness.

Crot. Euphranea, how are you resolved, speak freely,
    In your affections to this gentleman?

Euph. Nor more, nor less than as his love assures me;
    Which (if your liking with my brother's warrants)
    I cannot but approve in all points worthy.

Crot. So, so! I know your answer. [To Prophilus.

Ith. 'T had been pity,
    To sunder hearts so equally consented.

Enter Hemophil.

Hem. The king, lord Ithocles, commands your presence;
    And, fairest princess, yours.

Cal. We will attend him.

Enter Groneas.

Gron. Where are the lords? all must unto the king Without delay; the prince of Argos——
Cal. Well, sir?
Gron. Is coming to the court, sweet lady.
Cal. How!
The prince of Argos?
Gron. 'Twas my fortune, madam,
'T enjoy the honour of these happy tidings.
Ith. Penthea!
Pen. Brother.
Ith. Let me an hour hence Meet you alone, within the palace grove, I have some secret with you.—Prithee, friend, Conduct her thither, and have special care The walks be cleared of any to disturb us.
Pro. I shall.
Bass. How's that?
Ith. Alone, pray be alone.— I am your creature, princess.—On, my lords.

[Exeunt all but Bassanes.

Bass. Alone? alone? what means that word alone? Why might not I be there?—hum!—he's her brother. Brothers and sisters are but flesh and blood, And this same whoreson court-ease is temptation

Why may not he dispatch a business nimbly

Wife, cousin, anything,) ’mongst youths of metal
Is in request; it is so—stubborn fate!
But if I be a cuckold, and can know it,
I will be fell, and fell.

Re-enter Groneas.

Gron. My lord, you are called for.
Bass. Most heartily I thank you: where’s my wife, pray?
Gron. Retired amongst the ladies.
Bass. Still I thank you.

There’s an old waiter with her, saw you her too?
Gron. She sits i’ th’ presence-lobby fast asleep, sir.
Bass. Asleep? asleep, sir!
Gron. Is your lordship troubled?
You will not to the king?
Bass. Your humblest vassal.
Gron. Your servant, my good lord.
Bass. I wait your footsteps.

SCENE III

The Gardens of the Palace. A Grove.

Enter Prophilus and Penthea.

Pro. In this walk, lady, will your brother find you; And, with your favour, give me leave a little To work a preparation: in his fashion I have observed of late some kind of slackness To such alacrity as nature [once] And custom took delight in; sadness grows Upon his recreations, which he hoards In such a willing silence, that to question The grounds will argue [little] skill in friendship, And less good manners.

Pen. Sir, I am not inquisitive Of seccrecies, without an invitation.

Pro. With pardon, lady, not a syllable Of mine implies so rude a sense; the drift—

Enter Orgilus, as before.

Org. Your will shall be a law, sir. [Exit Prophilus.

Org. Speak on, fair nymph, our souls
Can dance as well to music of the spheres,
As any's who have feasted with the gods.

Pen. Your school-terms are too troublesome.

Org. What heaven
Refines mortality from dross of earth,
But such as uncompounded beauty hallows
With glorified perfection!

Pen. Set thy wits
In a less wild proportion.

Org. Time can never
On the white table of unguilty faith
Write counterfeit dishonour; turn those eyes
(The arrows of pure love) upon that fire,
Which once rose to a flame, perfumed with vows,
As sweetly scented as the incense smoking
On Vesta's altars,
the holiest odours, virgin's tears,
sprinkled, like dews, to feed them
And to increase their fervour.

Org. All pleasures are but mere imagination,
Feeding the hungry appetite with steam,
And sight of banquet, whilst the body pines,
Not relishing the real taste of food:
Such is the leanness of a heart, divided
ACT II. SC. 3.

The Broken Heart

From intercourse of troth-contracted loves;
No horror should deface that precious figure
Seal'd with the lively stamp of equal souls.

Pen. Away! some fury hath bewitch'd thy tongue: 50
The breath of ignorance that flies from thence,
Ripens a knowledge in me of affictions,
Above all sufferance.—Thing of talk, begone,
Begone, without reply!

Org. Be just, Penthea,
In thy commands; when thou send'st forth a doom
Of banishment, know first on whom it lights.
Thus I take off the shroud, in which my cares
Are folded up from view of common eyes.

[Throws off his scholar's dress.]

What is thy sentence next?

Pen. Rash man! thou lay'st
A blemish on mine honour, with the hazard
Of thy too desperate life; yet I profess,
By all the laws of ceremonious wedlock,
I have not given admittance to one thought
Of female change, since cruelty enforced
Divorce betwixt my body and my heart.
Why would you fall from goodness thus?

Org. O, rather Examine me, how I could live to say
I have been much, much wronged. 'Tis for thy sake
I put on this imposture; dear Penthea,
If thy soft bosom be not turned to marble,

Thou'lt pity our calamities; my interest
Confirms me, thou art mine still.

Pen. Lend your hand;
With both of mine I clasp it thus, thus kiss it,
Thus kneel before ye.                  [Pen. kneels.]

Org. You instruct my duty.           [Org. kneels.]

Pen. We may stand up. (They rise.) Have you ought else to urge
Of new demand? as for the old, forget it;
'Tis buried in an everlasting silence,
And shall be, shall be ever: what more would you?

Org. I would possess my wife; the equity
Of very reason bids me.

Pen. Is that all?

Org. Why, 'tis the all of me, myself.

Pen. Remove
Your steps some distance from me; at this space
A few words I dare change; but first put on
Your borrow'd shape.

Org. You are obey'd; 'tis done.

[He resumes his disguise.]

Pen. How, Orgilus, by promise, I was thine,
The heavens do witness; they can witness too
A rape done on my truth: how I do love thee
Yet, Orgilus, and yet, must best appear
In tendering thy freedom; for I find
The constant preservation of thy merit,
By thy not daring to attempt my fame:

With injury of any loose conceit,
Which might give deeper wounds to discontents.
Continue this fair race; then, though I cannot Add to thy comfort, yet I shall more often
Remember from what fortune I am fallen,
And pity mine own ruin. Live, live happy,
Happy in thy next choice, that thou may'st people
This barren age with virtues in thy issue!
And, oh, when thou art married, think on me
With mercy, not contempt; I hope thy wife,
Hearing my story, will not scorn my fall.—

Now let us part.

Org. Part! yet advise thee better:
Penethea is the wife to Orgilus,
And ever shall be.

Pen. Never shall, nor will.

Org. How!

Pen. Hear me; in a word I'll tell thee why.
The virgin-dowry which my birth bestow'd,
Is ravished by another; my true love
Abhors to think, that Orgilus deserved
No better favours than a second bed.

Org. I must not take this reason.

Pen. To confirm it;
Should I outlive my bondage, let me meet
Another worse than this, and less desired,
If, of all men alive, thou should'st but touch
My lip, or hand again!
The Broken Heart

ACT II. SC. 3.

Org. Penthea, now
I tell you, you grow wanton in my sufferance;
Come, sweet, thou art mine.

Pen. Uncivil sir, forbear,
Or I can turn affection into vengeance;
Your reputation, if you value any,
Lies bleeding at my feet. Unworthy man,
If ever henceforth thou appear in language,
Message, or letter, to betray my frailty,
I'll call thy former protestations lust,
And curse my stars for forfeit of my judgment.
Go thou, fit only for disguise, and walks,
To hide thy shame; this once I spare thy life.
I laugh at mine own confidence; my sorrows
By thee are made inferior to my fortunes:
If ever thou didst harbour worthy love,
Dare not to answer. My good Genius guide me,
That I may never see thee more!—Go from me!

Org. I'll tear my veil of politic French off,
And stand up like a man resolved to do:—
Action, not words, shall show me.—Oh Penthea!

[Exit.

Pen. He sighed my name sure, as he parted from me;
I fear I was too rough. Alas, poor gentleman! 150.
He look'd not like the ruins of his youth,
But like the ruins of those ruins. Honour,
How much we fight with weakness to preserve thee!

Enter Bassanes and Grausis.

Bass. Fie on thee! damn thee, rotten maggot, damn thee!
Sleep, sleep at court? and now? Aches, convulsions,
Imposthumes, rheums, gouts, palsies, clog thy bones
A dozen years more yet!

Grau. Now you are in humours.

Bass. She's by herself, there's hope of that; she's sad too;
She's in strong contemplation; yes, and fixed: 160
The signs are wholesome.

Grau. Very wholesome, truly.

Bass. Hold your chops, nightmare!—Lady, come; your brother
Is carried to his closet; you must thither.

Pen. Not well, my lord?

Bass. A sudden fit, 'twill off;
Some surfeit of disorder.—How dost, dearest?

Pen. Your news is none o' th' best.

Enter Prophilus.

Pro. The chief of men,
The excellentest Ithocles, desires
Your presence, madam.

Bass. We are hasting to him.

Pen. In vain we labour in this course of life

Bass. Perfect philosophy!
Pen. Then let us care

   When we’re to make account.

Pro. He cannot fear
   Who builds on noble grounds: sickness or pain
   Is the deserver’s exercise; and such
   Your virtuous brother to the world is known.
   Speak comfort to him, lady, be all gentle;
   Stars fall but in the grossness of our sight,
   A good man dying, th’ earth doth lose a light.

SCENE I

The Study of Tecnicus.

Enter Tecnicus, and Orgilus, in his usual Dress.

Tec. Be well advised; let not a resolution
   Of giddy rashness choke the breath of reason.
Org. It shall not, most sage master.
Tec. I am jealous;
   For if the borrow'd shape so late put on,
   Inferred a consequence, we must conclude
   Some violent design of sudden nature
   Hath shook that shadow off, to fly upon
   A new-hatch'd execution. Orgilus,
   Take heed thou hast not, under our integrity,
   Shrowded unlawful plots; our mortal eyes
   Pierce not the secrets of your heart, the gods
   Are only privy to them.
Org. Learned Tecnicus,

ACT III. SC. 1.

From misconceit,—the present state commands me.
The prince of Argos comes himself in person
In quest of great Calantha for his bride,
Our kingdom's heir? besides, mine only sister,
Euphranea, is disposed to Prophilus: Lastly, the king is sending letters for me
To Athens, for my quick repair to court;
Please to accept these reasons.

Tec. Just ones, Orgilus,
Not to be contradicted: yet, beware
Of an unsure foundation; no fair colours
Can fortify a building faintly jointed.
I have observ'd a growth in thy aspect
Of dangerous extent, sudden, and—look to't—
I might add, certain—

Org. My aspect! could art
Run through mine inmost thoughts, it should not sift
An inclination there, more than what suited
With justice of mine honour.

Tec. I believe it.
But know then, Orgilus, what honour is:
Honour consists not in a bare opinion
By doing any act that feeds content,
Brave in appearance, 'cause we think it brave;
Such honour comes by accident, not nature Proceeding from the vices of our passion,
Which makes our reason drunk: but real honour Is the reward of virtue, and acquired

By justice, or by valour which, for basis,
Hath justice to uphold it. He then fails
In honour, who, for lucre or revenge,
Commits thefts, murther, treasons, and adulteries,
With such like, by intrenching on just laws,
Whose sovereignty is best preserv'd by Justice.
Thus, as you see how honour must be grounded 50
On knowledge, not opinion, (for opinion
Relies on probability and accident,
But knowledge on necessity and truth,)
I leave thee to the fit consideration
Of what becomes the grace of real honour,
Wishing success to all thy virtuous meanings.

Org. The gods increase thy wisdom, reverend oracle,
And in thy precepts make me ever thrifty!  [Exit.

Tec. I thank thy wish.—Much mystery of fate
Lies hid in that man's fortunes; curiosity 60
May lead his actions into rare attempts:—
But let the gods be moderators still;
No human power can prevent their will.

Enter Armostes, with a Casket.

From whence come you?

Arm. From king Amyclas,—pardon
My interruption of your studies.—Here,
In this seal'd box, he sends a treasure [to you],
Dear to him as his crown; he prays your Gravity,

You would examine, ponder, sift, and bolt
The pith and circumstance of every tittle
The scroll within contains.

Tec. What's it, Armostes?

Arm. It is the health of Sparta, the king's life,
    Sinews and safety of the commonwealth;
    The sum of what the Oracle delivered,
    When last he visited the prophetic temple
    At Delphos: what his reasons are, for which,
    After so long a silence, he requires
    Your counsel now, grave man, his majesty
    Will soon himself acquaint you with.

Tec. Apollo [He takes the casket.
    Inspire my intellect!—The prince of Argos;
    Is entertain'd?

Arm. He is; and has demanded
    Our princess for his wife; which I conceive
    One special cause the king importunes you
    For resolution of the oracle.

Tec. My duty to the king, good peace to Sparta,
    And fair day to Armostes!

Arm. Like to Tecnicus. [Exeunt. 90

SCENE II

A Room in Ithocles’ House.

Soft Music:—A Song within, during which Prophilus, Bassanes, Penthea, and Grausis pass over the Stage. Bassanes and Grausis re-enter softly, and listen in different places.

SONG.

Can you paint a thought? or number
Every fancy in a slumber?
Can you count soft minutes roving
From a dial’s point by moving?
Can you grasp a sigh? or, lastly,
Rob a virgin’s honour chastly?

No, oh no! yet you may
Sooner do both that and this,
This and that, and never miss,
Than by any praise display
Beauty’s beauty; such a glory,
As beyond all fate, all story,
All arms, all arts,
All loves, all hearts,
Greater than those, or they,
Do, shall, and must obey.
The Broken Heart

ACT III. SC. 2.

Bass. All silent, calm, secure.—Grauis, no creaking,
    No noise; dost [thou] hear nothing?

Grau. Not a mouse,
    Or whisper of the wind.

Bass. The floor is matted;
    The bed-posts sure as steel or marble.—Soldiers
    Should not affect, methinks, strains so effeminate;
    Sounds of such delicacy are but fawnings
    Upon the sloth of luxury, they heighten
    Cinders of covert lust up to a flame.

Grau. What do you mean, my lord?—speak low; that gabbling
    Of your's will but undo us.

Bass. Chamber-combats
    Are felt, not heard!

Pro. [within]. He wakes.

Bass. What's that?

Ith. [within]. Who's there?
    Sister?—All quit the room else.

Bass. 'Tis consented!

Enter Prophilus.

Pro. Lord Bassanes, your brother would be private,
    We must forbear; his sleep hath newly left him.
    Please you, withdraw!

Bass. By any means; 'tis fit.

Pro. Pray, gentlewoman, walk too.

Grau. Yes, I will, sir.

[Exeunt.]
ACT III. SC. 2.

The Broken Heart

The Scene opens: Ithocles is discovered in a Chair, and Penethea beside him.

_Ith._ Sit nearer, sister, to me; nearer yet:
   We had one father, in one womb took life,
   Were brought up twins together, yet have lived
   At distance, like two strangers; I could wish
   That the first pillow whereon I was cradled,
   Had prov’d to me a grave.

_Pen._ You had been happy:
   Then had you never known that sin of life,
   Which blots all following glories with a vengeance,
   For forfeiting the last will of the dead,
   From whom you had your being.

_Ith._ Sad Penethea,
   Thou canst not be too cruel; my rash spleen
   Hath with a violent hand plucked from thy bosom
   A love-blest heart, to grind it into dust;
   For which mine’s now a-breaking.

_Pen._ Not yet, heaven.
   I do beseech thee! first, let some wild fires
   Scorch, not consume it! may the heat be cherished
   With desires infinite, but hopes impossible!

_Ith._ Wronged soul, thy prayers are heard.

_Pen._ Here, lo, I breathe,
   A miserable creature, led to ruin
   By an unnatural brother!

_Ith._ I consume
The Broken Heart

In languishing affections for that trespass;
Yet cannot die.

Pen. The handmaid to the wages
    Of country toil, drinks the untroubled streams
    With leaping kids, and with the bleating lambs,
    And so allays her thirst secure; whilst I
    Quench my hot sighs with fleetings of my tears.

Ith. The labourer doth eat his coarsest bread,
    Earned with his sweat, and lays him down to sleep;
    While every bit I touch turns in digestion
    To gall, as bitter as Penthea's curse.
    Put me to any penance for my tyranny;
    And I will call thee merciful.

Pen. Pray kill me,
    Rid me from living with a jealous husband;
    Then we will join in friendship, be again
    Brother and sister.—Kill me, pray; nay, will you?

Ith. How doth thy lord esteem thee?

Pen. Such an one
    As only you have made me; a faith-breaker,
    A spotted whore;—forgive me, I am one—
    In act, not in desires, the gods must witness.

Ith. Thou doth bely thy friend.

Pen. I do not, Ithocles;
    For she that's wise to Orgilus, and lives
    In known adultery with Bassanes,
    Is, at the best, a whore. Wilt kill me now?
    The ashes of our parents will assume 57

ACT III. SC. 2.

The Broken Heart

Some dreadful figure, and appear to charge
Thy bloody guilt, that hast betrayed their name
To infamy, in this reproachful match.

Ith. After my victories abroad, at home
I meet despair; ingratitude of nature
Hath made my actions monstrous: thou shalt stand
A deity, my sister, and be worshipped
For thy resolved martyrdom; wronged maids
And married wives shall to thy hallowed shrine
Offer their orisons, and sacrifice
Pure turtles, crowned with myrtle; if thy pity
Unto a yielding brother's pressure, lend
One finger but to ease it.

Pen. Oh, no more!

Ith. Death waits to waft me to the Stygian banks,
And free me from this chaos of my bondage;
And till thou wilt forgive, I must endure.

Pen. Who is the saint you serve?

Ith. Friendship, or [nearness]
Of birth to any but my sister, durst not
Have mov'd this question; 'tis a secret, sister,
I dare not murmur to myself.

Pen. Let me,
By your new protestations I conjure you,
Partake her name.

Ith. Her name?—'tis—'tis—I dare not.

Pen. All your respects are forged.

Ith. They are not.—Peace!

58
The Broken Heart

Calantha is—the princess—the king's daughter—
Sole heir of Sparta.—Me, most miserable!
Do I now love thee? for my injuries
Revenge thyself with bravery, and gossip
My treasons to the king's ears, do;—Calantha
Knows it not yet, nor Prophilus, my nearest.

Pen. Suppose you were contracted to her, would it not Split even your very soul to see her father
Snatch her out of your arms against her will,
And force her on the prince of Argos?

Ith. Trouble not
The fountains of mine eyes with thine own story;
I sweat in blood for't.

Pen. We are reconciled.
Alas, sir, being children, but two branches
Of one stock, 'tis not fit we should divide;
Have comfort, you may find it.

Ith. Yes, in thee;
Only in thee, Penthea mine.

Pen. If sorrows
Have not too much dulled my infected brain,
I'll cheer invention, for an active strain.

Ith. Mad man!—Why have I wrong'd a maid so excellent?

Bassanes rushes in with a Poniard, followed by Prophilus, Groneas, Hemophil, and Grausis.

Bass. I can forbear no longer; more, I will not:

59
ACT III. SC. 2.

Keep off your hands, or fall upon my point.—
Patience is tired,—for, like a slow-paced ass,
You ride my easy nature, and proclaim
My sloth to vengeance a reproach, and property. 150

Ith. The meaning of this rudeness?

Pro. He's distracted.

Pen. Oh my grieved lord.

Grau. Sweet lady, come not near him:
    He holds his perilous weapon in his hand
    To prick he cares not whom, nor where,—see, see, see!

Bass. My birth is noble: through the popular blast
    Of vanity, as giddy as thy youth,
    Hath reared thy name up to bestride a cloud,
    Or progress in the chariot of the sun; 160
    I am no clod of trade, to lackey pride,
    Nor, like your slave of expectation, wait
    The baudy hinges of your doors, or whistle
    For mystical conveyance to your bed-sports.

Gron. Fine humours! they become him.

Hem. How he stares,
    Struts, puffs, and sweats! most admirable lunacy!

Ith. But that I may conceive the spirit of wine
    Has took possession of your soberer custom,
    I'd say you were unmannerly. 170

Pen. Dear brother!

Bass. Unmannerly!—mew, kitling!—smooth formality
    Is usher to the rankness of the blood,
The Broken Heart

ACT III. SC. 2.

But impudence bears up the train.  Indeed, sir,
Your fiery metal, or your springal blaze
Of huge renown, is no sufficient royalty
To print upon my forehead the scorn, "cuckold."

Ith. His jealousy hath robbed him of his wits;
He talks he knows not what.

Bass. Yes, and he knows
To whom he talks! to one that franks his lust
In swine-security of bestial incest.

Ith. Ha, devil!

Bass. I will halloo't; though I blush more
To name the filthiness, than thou to act it.

Ith. Monster!

[Draws his sword]

Pro. Sir, by our friendship—

Pen. By our bloods!

O, brother, will you quite undo us both?

Grau. Out on him!

These are his megrims, firks, and melancholies.

Hem. Well said, old touch-hole.

Gron. Kick him out at doors.

Pen. With favour, let me speak.—My lord, what slackness
In my obedience hath deserved this rage?
Except humility and silent duty
Hath drawn on your unquiet, my simplicity
Ne'er studied your vexation.

Bass. Light of beauty,
Deal not ungently with a desperate wound!
ACT III. SC. 2.

No breach of reason dares make war with her
Whose looks are sovereignty, whose breath is balm:
Oh, that I could preserve thee in fruition
As in devotion!

Pen. Sir, may every evil,
Lock'd in Pandora's box, shower, in your presence,
On my unhappy head, if, since you made me
A partner in your bed, I have been faulty
In one unseemly thought, against your honour.

Ith. Purge not his griefs, Penthea. 210

Bass. Yes, say on,
Excellent creature!—Good, be not a hinderance
To peace, and praise of virtue, [to Ith.]—Oh, my senses
Are charm'd with sounds celestial.—On, dear, on:
I never gave you one ill word: say, did I?
Indeed I did not!

Pen. Nor, by Juno's forehead,
Was I e'er guilty of a wanton error!

Bass. A goddess! let me kneel.

Grau. Alas, kind animal! 220

Ith. No! but for penance.

Bass. Noble sir, what is it?
With gladness I embrace it; yet, pray let not
My rashness teach you to be too unmerciful.

Ith. When you shall show good proof, that manly wisdom,
Not oversway'd by passion or opinion,

Your wife, my sister, shall return in safety
Home to be guided by you; but, till first
I can out of clear evidence, approve it,
She shall be my care.

Bass. Rip my bosom up,
I’ll stand the execution with a constancy;
This torture is insufferable.

Ith. Well, sir,
I dare not trust her to your fury.

Bass. But
Penthea says not so.

Pen. She needs no tongue
To plead excuse, who never purposed wrong.

[Exit with Ithocles and Prophilus.

Hem. Virgin of reverence and antiquity,
Stay you behind!

[To Grausis, who is followed by Penthea.

Gron. The court wants not your diligence.

[Exeunt Hemophil and Groneas.

Grau. What will you do, my lord? my lady's gone;
I am denied to follow.

Bass. I may see her,
Or speak to her once more?

Grau. And feel her too, man;
Be of good cheer, she's your own flesh and bone.

Bass. Diseases desperate must find cures alike;
She swore she has been true.
ACT III. SC. 3.

Grau. True, on my modesty.
Bass. Let him want truth who credits not her vows!
     Much wrong I did her, but her brother infinite;
     Rumour will voice me the contempt of manhood.
     Should I run on thus? some way I must try
     To outdo art, and jealousy decry.        [Exeunt.

SCENE III

A Room in the Palace.

Flourish. Enter Amyclas, Nearchus leading Calantha, Armostes, Crotolon, Euphranea, Christalla, Philema, and Amelus.

Amyc. Cousin of Argos, what the heavens have pleas'd,
     In their unchanging counsels, to conclude
     For both our kingdoms' weal, we must submit to:
     Nor can we be unthankful to their bounties,
     Who, when we were ev'n creeping to our graves,
     Sent us a daughter, in whose birth, our hope
     Continues of succession. As you are
     In title next, being grandchild to our aunt,
     So we in heart desire you may sit nearest Calantha's love; since we have ever vowed
     Not to enforce affection by our will,
     But by her own choice to confirm it gladly.
Near. You speak the nature of a right just father.
The Broken Heart

I come not hither roughly to demand
My cousin's thraldom, but to free mine own:
Report of great Calantha's beauty, virtue,
Sweetness and singular perfections, courted
All ears to credit what I find was published
By constant truth; from which, if any service
Of my desert can purchase fair construction,
This lady must command it.

Cal. Principly sir,
So well you know how to profess observance,
That you instruct your hearers to become Practitioners in duty; of which number
I'll study to be chief.

Near. Chief, glorious virgin,
In my devotion, as in all men's wonder.

Amyc. Excellent cousin, we deny no liberty:
Use thine own opportunities.—Arm ostes,
We must consult with the philosophers;
The business is of weight.

Arm. Sir, at your pleasure.

Amyc. You told me, Crotolon, your son's returned
From Athens: wherefore comes he not to court,
As we commanded?

Cro. He shall soon attend
Your royal will, great sir.

Amyc. The marriage
Between young Prophilus and Euphranea,
Tastes of too much delay.
ACT III. SC. 3.

Crot. My lord—
Amyc. Some pleasures
At celebration of it, would give life
To the entertainment of the prince our kinsman;
Our court wears gravity more than we relish.
Arm. Yet the heavens smile on all your high attempts,
Without a cloud.
Crot. So may the gods protect us!
Cal. A prince, a subject?
Near. Yes, to beauty's sceptre;
As all hearts kneel, so mine.
Cal. You are too courtly.

Enter Ithocles, Orgilus, and Prophilus.

Ith. Your safe return to Sparta is most welcome:
I joy to meet you here, and, as occasion
Shall grant us privacy, will yield you reasons
Why I should covet to deserve the title
Of your respected friend; for, without compliment,
Believe it, Orgilus, 'tis my ambition.
Org. Your lordship may command me, your poor servant.
Ith. So amorously close!—so soon—my heart! [Aside.
Pro. What sudden change is next?
Ith. Life to the king!
To whom I here present this noble gentleman,
New come from Athens; royal sir, vouchsafe
Your gracious hand in favour of his merit.

[The King gives Orgilus his hand to kiss.

ACT III. SC. 3.

Crot. My son preferred by Ithocles! [Aside.
Amyc. Our bounties
Shall open to thee, Orgilus; for instance,
(Hark, in thine ear)—if, out of those inventions,
Which flow in Athens, thou hast there engrossed
Some rarity of wit, to grace the nuptials
Of thy fair sister, and renown our court
In th’ eyes of this young prince, we shall be debtor
To thy conceit: think on ’t.

Org. Your highness honours me.
Near. My tongue and heart are twins.
Cal. A noble birth,
Becoming such a father.—Worthy Orgilus,
You are a guest most wish’d for.

Org. May my duty
Still rise in your opinion, sacred princess!

Ith. Euphranea’s brother, sir; a gentleman
Well worthy of your knowledge.
Near. We embrace him,
Proud of so dear acquaintance.

Amyc. All prepare
For revels and disport; the joys of Hymen,
Like Phœbus in his lustre, put to flight
All mists of dulness; crown the hours with gladness:
No sounds but music, no discourse but mirth!

ul. Thine arm, I prithee, Ithocles.—Nay, good
My lord, keep on your way, I am provided.

ar. I dare not disobey.

Most heavenly lady! [Exeunt omnes.
SCENE IV

A Room in the House of Crotolon.

Enter Crotolon and Orgilus.

Crot. The king hath spoke his mind.
Org. His will he hath;
But were it lawful to hold plea against
The power of greatness, not the reason, haply
Such undershrubs as subjects, sometimes might Borrow of nature, justice, to inform
That licence sovereignty holds, without check,
Over a meek obedience.

Crot. How resolve you
Touching your sister’s marriage? Prophilus
Is a deserving and a hopeful youth.

Org. I envy not his merit, but applaud it;
Could wish him thrift in all his best desires.
And, with a willingness, inleague our blood
With his, for purchase of full growth in friendship.
He never touched on any wrong that maliced
The honour of our house, nor stirr’d our peace;
Yet, with your favour, let me not forget
Under whose wing he gathers warmth and comfort,
Whose creature he is bound, made, and must live so.

Crot. Son, son, I find in thee a harsh condition,
No courtesy can win it; 'tis too rancorous.

Org. Good sir, be not severe in your construction;
I am no stranger to such easy calms
As sit in tender bosoms: lordly Ithocles
Hath graced my entertainment in abundance;
Too humbly hath descended from that height
Of arrogance and spleen which wrought the rape
On grieved Penthea's purity; his scorn
Of my untoward fortunes is reclaimed
Unto a courtship, almost to a fawning:—
I'll kiss his foot, since you will have it so.

Crot. Since I will have it so! friend, I will have it so,
Without our ruin by your politic plots,
Or wolf of hatred snarling in your breast.
You have a spirit, sir, have you? a familiar
That posts i' th' air for your intelligence?
Some such hobgoblin hurried you from Athens,
For yet you come unsent for.

Org. If unwelcome,
I might have found a grave there.

Crot. Sure your business
Was soon dispatched, or your mind altered quickly.

Org. 'Twas care, sir, of my health, cut short my journey;
For there, a general infection
Threatens a desolation.

Crot. And I fear
Thou hast brought back a worse infection with thee,
ACT III. SC. 4.

The Broken He

Infection of thy mind; which, as thou say'st,
Threatens the desolation of our family.

Org. Forbid it, our dear Genius! I will rather
Be made a sacrifice on Thrasus' monument,
Or kneel to Ithocles his son in dust,
Than woo a father's curse: my sister's marriage
With Prophillus is from my heart confirmed;
May I live hated, may I die despised,
If I omit to further it in all
That can concern me!

Crot. I have been too rough.
My duty to my king made me so earnest;
Excuse it, Orgilus.

Org. Dear sir!

Enter Prophillus, Euphranea, Ithocles, Groneas, and Hemophil.

Crot. Here comes
Euphranea, with Prophillus and Ithocles.

Org. Most honoured!—ever famous!

Ith. Your true friend!
On earth not any truer.—With smooth eyes
Look on this worthy couple; your consent
Can only make them one.

Org. They have it.—Sister,
Thou pawnd'st to me an oath, of which engagem
I never will release thee, if thou aim'st
At any other choice than this.

The Broken Heart

_Euph._ Dear brother,
   To him, or none.
_Crot._ To which my blessing's added.
_Org._ Which, till a greater ceremony perfect,— Euphranea, lend thy hand;—here, take her, Pro
   philus,
Live long a happy man and wife; and further,
That these in presence may conclude an omen,
Thus for a bridal song I close my wishes:

'Comforts lasting, loves increasing,
Like soft hours never ceasing;
Plenty's pleasure, peace complying,
Without jars, or tongues envying;
Hearts by holy union wedded,
More than theirs by custom bedded;
Fruitful issues; life so graced,
Not by age to be defaced;
Budding, as the year ensu'th,
Every spring another youth:
All what thought can add beside,
Crown this Bridegroom and this Bride!'

_Pro._ You have sealed joy close to my soul.—Euphranea,
   Now I may call thee mine.
_Ith._ I but exchange
   One good friend for another.
_Org._ If these gallants

Will please to grace a poor invention
By joining with me in some slight device,
I'll venture on a strain my younger days
Have studied for delight.

Hem. With thankful willingness
I offer my attendance.

Gron. No endeavour
Of mine shall fail to show itself.

Ith. We will
All join to wait on thy directions, Orgilus.

Org. Oh, my good lord, your favours flow towards
A too unworthy worm ;—but, as you please,
I am what you will shape me.

Ith. A fast friend.

Crot. I thank thee, son, for this acknowledgment,
It is a sight of gladness.

Org. But my duty. [Exeunt omnes.

SCENE V

Calantha's Apartment in the Palace.

Enter Calantha, Penthea, Christalla, and Philema.

Cal. Whoe'er would speak with us, deny his entrance;
Be careful of our charge.

Chris. We shall, madam.

72
The Broken Heart

ACT III. SC. 5.

Cal. Except the king himself, give none admittance;
    Not any.
Phil. Madam, it shall be your care.

[Exeunt Christalla and Philema.

Cal. Being alone, Penthea, you have, granted,
    The opportunity, you sought, and might
    At all time have commanded.

Pen. 'Tis a benefit
    Which I shall owe your goodness even in death for:
    My glass of life, sweet princess, hath few minutes
    Remaining to run down; the sands are spent;
    For by an inward messenger I feel
    The summons of departure short and certain.

Cal. You feed too much your melancholy.

Pen. Glories
    Of human greatness are but pleasing dreams,
    Of shadows soon decaying; on the stage
    Of my mortality, my youth hath acted
    Some scenes of vanity, drawn out at length
    By varied pleasures, sweeten'd in the mixture,
    But tragical in issue: beauty, pomp,
    With every sensuality our giddiness
    Doth frame an idol, are unconstant friends,
    When any troubled passion makes assault
    On the unguarded castle of the mind.

Cal. Contemn not your condition, for the proof
    Of bare opinion only: to what end
    Reach all these moral texts?
ACT III. SC. 5.

Pen. To place before you
   A perfect mirror, wherein you may see
   How weary I am of a lingering life,
   Who count the best a misery.

Cal. Indeed
   You have no little cause; yet none so great
   As to distrust a remedy.

Pen. That remedy
   Must be a winding-sheet, a fold of lead,
   And some untrod-on corner in the earth.—
   Not to detain your expectation, princess,
   I have an humble suit.

Cal. Speak; I enjoy it.

Pen. Vouchsafe, then, to be my executrix,
   And take that trouble on you, to dispose
   Such legacies as I bequeath, impartially;
   I have not much to give, the pains are easy;
   Heav’n will reward your piety, and thank it
   When I am dead; for sure I must not live;
   I hope I cannot.

Cal. Now, beshrew thy sadness,
   Thou turn’st me too much woman. [Weeps.

Pen. Her fair eyes
   Melt into passion. [Aside.]—Then I have assurance Encouraging my boldness. In this paper
   My will was characterized; which you, with pardon,
   Shall now know from mine own mouth.
The Broken Heart

ACT III. SC. 5.

Cal. Talk on, prithee; It is a pretty earnest.

Pen. I have left me
But three poor jewels to bequeath. The first is My Youth; for though I am much old in griefs,
In years I am a child.

Cal. To whom that?

Pen. To virgin-wives, such as abuse not wedlock
By freedom of desires; but covet chiefly
The pledges of chaste beds for ties of love,
Rather than ranging of their blood: and next
To married maids, such as prefer the number
Of honourable issue in their virtues
Before the flattery of delights by marriage;
May those be ever young!

Cal. A second jewel
You mean to part with?

Pen. 'Tis my Fame; I trust,
By scandal yet untouched: this I bequeath
To Memory, and Time's old daughter, Truth.
If ever my unhappy name find mention,
When I am fallen to dust, may it deserve
Beseeming charity without dishonour!

Cal. How handsomely thou playest with harmless sport
Of mere imagination! speak the last;
I strangely like thy Will.

Pen. This jewel, madam,
Is dearly precious to me; you must us

The best of your discretion to employ
This gift as I intend it.

Cal. Do not doubt me.

Pen. 'Tis long agone since first I lost my heart:
    Long have I lived without it, else for certain:
    I should have given that too; but instead
    Of it, to great Calantha, Sparta's heir,
    By service bound, and by affection vowed,
    I do bequeath, in holiest rites of love,
    Mine only brother, Ithocles.

Cal. What said'st thou?

Pen. Impute not, heaven-blest lady, to ambition
    A faith as humbly perfect, as the prayers
    Of a devoted suppliant can endow it:
    Look on him, princess, with an eye of pity;
    How like the ghost of what he late appeared,
    He moves before you!

Cal. Shall I answer here,
    Or lend my ear too grossly?

Pen. First his heart
    Shall fall in cinders, scorched by your disdain,
    Ere he will dare, poor man, to ope an eye
    On these divine looks, but with low-bent thoughts
    Accusing such presumption; as for words,
    He dares not utter any but of service:
    Yet this lost creature loves you.—Be a princess
    In sweetness as in blood; give him his doom,
    Or raise him up to comfort.

76
The Broken Heart

ACT III. SC. 5.

Cal. What new change
Appears in my behaviour, that thou dar'st
Tempt my displeasure?

Pen. I must leave the world
To revel [in] Elysium, and 'tis just
To wish my brother some advantage here;
Yet by my best hopes, Ithocles is ignorant
Of this pursuit: but if you please to kill him,
Lend him one angry look, or one harsh word,
And you shall soon conclude how strong a power
Your absolute authority holds over
His life and end.

Cal. You have forgot, Penthea,
How still I have a father.

Pen. But remember
I am a sister, though to me this brother
Hath been, you know, unkind; oh, most unkind!

Cal. Christalla, Philema, where are you?—Lady,
Your check lies in my silence.

Enter Christalla and Philema.

Both. Madam, here.

Cal. I think you sleep, you drones: wait on Penthea
Unto her lodging.—Ithocles? wrong'd lady! [Aside.

Pen. My reckonings are made even; death or fate
Can now nor strike too soon, nor force too late.

[Exeunt.]
ACT IV

SCENE I

The Palace. Ithocles' Apartment.

Enter Ithocles and Armostes.

Ith. Forbear your inquisition; curiosity
Is of too subtle and too searching nature:
In fear of love too quick; too slow credit.—
I am not what you doubt me.

Arm. Nephew, be then
As I would wish;—all is not right.—Good Heaven
Confirm your resolutions for dependence
On worthy ends, which may advance your quiet!

Ith. I did the noble Orgilus much injury,
But grieved Penthea more; I now repent it,
Now, uncle, now; this Now is now too late.
So provident is folly in sad issue,
The afterwit, like bankrupt's debts, stands tallied,
Without all possibilities of payment.
Sure he's an honest, very honest gentleman;
A man of single meaning.

rm. I believe it:
   Yet, nephew, 'tis the tongue informs our ears;
   Our eyes can never pierce into the thoughts,
   For they are lodged too inward:—but I question
   No truth in Orgilus.—The princess, sir.

h. The princess? ha!

rm. With her the prince of Argos.

Intr. Nearchus, leading Calantha; Amelus, Christalla, Philema.

ear. Great fair one, grace my hopes with any instance
   Of livery, from the allowance of your favour;
   This little spark—
   [Attempts to take a ring from her finger.

ul. A toy!

ear. Love feasts on toys,
   For Cupid is a child;—vouchsafe this bounty:
   It cannot be denied.

ul. You shall not value,
   Sweet cousin, at a price, what I count cheap;
   So cheap, that let him take it, who dare stoop for't,
   And give it, at next meeting, to a mistress:
   She'll thank him for't, perhaps.
   [Casts the ring before Ithocles, who takes it up.

me. The ring, sir, is
   The princess's; I could have took it up.

1th. Learn manners, prithee.—To the blessed owner,
Upon my knees——

[Kneels and offers it to Calantha.

Near. You are saucy.

Cal. This is pretty!
I am, belike, 'a mistress'—wondrous pretty!
Let the man keep his fortune, since he found it;
He's worthy on't.—On, cousin!

[Exeunt Nearchus, Calantha, Christalla, and Philema.

1th. (to Amelus). Follow, spaniel;
I'll force you to a fawning else.

Ame. You dare not.

Arm. My lord, you were too forward.

1th. Look ye, uncle,
Some such there are, whose liberal contents
Swarm without care in every sort of plenty;
Who, after full repasts, can lay them down
To sleep; and they sleep, uncle: in which silence
Their very dreams present 'em choice of pleasures,
Pleasures (observe me, uncle) of rare object:
Here heaps of gold, there increments of honours,
Now change of garments, then the votes of people;
Anon varieties of beauty, courting,
In flatteries of the night, exchange of dalliance;
Yet these are still but dreams. Give me felicity
Of which my senses waking are partakers
A real, visible, material happiness;

And then, too, when I stagger in expectance
Of the least comfort that can cherish life—
I saw it, sir, I saw it; for it came From her own hand.

rm. The princess threw it to you.

i. True; and she said—well I remember what—
   Her cousin prince would beg it.

rm. Yes, and parted
   In anger at your taking on't.

i. Penthea,
   Oh, thou hast pleaded with a powerful language!
   I want a fee to gratify thy merit;
   But I will do—

rm. What isn’t you say?

i. ‘In anger?’
   In anger let him part; for could his breath,
   Like whirlwinds, toss such servile slaves, as lick
   The dust his footsteps print, into a vapour,
   It durst not stir a hair of mine; it should not;
   I’d rend it up by th’ roots first. To be anything
   Calantha smiles on, is to be a blessing
   More sacred than a petty prince of Argos
   Can wish to equal, or in worth or title.

rm. Contain yourself, my lord; Ixion, aiming
   To embrace Juno, bosom’d but a cloud,
   And begat Centaurs; ’tis an useful moral:
   Ambition, hatch’d in clouds of mere opinion,
   Proves but in birth a prodigy.
ACT IV. SC. I.

ITH. I thank you;
Yet, with your license, I should seem uncharitable
To gentler fate, if relishing the dainties
Of a soul's settled peace, I were so feeble
Not to digest it.

ARM. He deserves small trust,
Who is not privy-counsellor to himself.

Re-enter Nearchus, Orgilus, and Amelus.

NEAR. Brave me?

ORG. Your excellence mistakes his temper,
For Ithocles, in fashion of his mind,
Is beautiful, soft, gentle, the clear mirror
Of absolute perfection!

AME. Was't your modesty
Term'd any of the prince's servants 'spaniel'?
Your nurse sure taught you other language.

ITH. Language!

NEAR. A gallant man at arms is here; a doctor
In feats of chivalry; blunt and rough-spoken,
Vouchsafing not the fustian of civility,
Which [less] rash spirits stile good manners.

ITH. Manners?

ORG. No more, illustrious sir, 'tis matchless Ithocles.

NEAR. You might have understood who I am.

ITH. Yes,
I did,—else—but the presence calm'd the affront—
You are cousin to the princess.

Near. To the king too;
   A certain instrument that lent supportance
To your Colossic greatness—to that king too,
   You might have added.                      120

Ith. There is more divinity
   In beauty than in majesty.

Arm. O fye, fye!

Near. This odd youth’s pride turns heretic in loyalty.
   Sirrah! low mushrooms never rival cedars.

[Exeunt Nearchus and Amelus.

Ith. Come back;—what pitiful dull thing am I
So to be tamely scolded at! come back.—
Let him come back, and echo once again
That scornful sound of mushroom! painted colts
(Like heralds’ coats, girt o’er with crowns and sceptres)
May bait a muzzled lion.                               131

Arm. Cousin, cousin,
   Thy tongue is not thy friend.

Org. In point of honour,
   Discretion knows no bounds. Amelus told me
   ’Twas all about a little ring.

Ith. A ring
   The princess threw away, and I took up—
Admit she threw’t to me, what arm of brass
Can snatch it hence? No; could he grind the hoop
To powder, he might sooner reach my heart,       141
Than steal and wear one with dust on’t.—Orgilus,
I am extremely wronged.

83
Org. A lady's form is not to be so slighted.
Ith. Slighted!
Arm. Quiet
   These vain unruly passions, which will render you
   Into a madness.
Org. Griefs will have their vent.

Enter Tecnicus, with a scroll.

Arm. Welcome; thou com'st in season, reverend man,
   To pour the balsam of a suppling patience
   Into the festering wound of ill-spent fury.
Tec. The hurts are yet more mortal,
   Which shortly will prove deadly. To the king,
Armostes, see in safety thou deliver
This seal'd-up counsel; bid him with a constancy
Peruse the secrets of the Gods.—O Sparta,
O Lacedemon! double named, but one
In fate!—when kingdoms reel, (mark well my saw)
Their heads must needs be giddy: tell the king,
That henceforth he no more must inquire after
My aged head; Apollo wills it so:
I am for Delphos.

Arm. Not without some conference
   With our great master?
Tec. Never more to see him;
   A greater prince commands me.—Ithocles,

Ith. What's this, if understood?

Tec. List, Orgilus;
Remember what I told thee long before,
These tears shall be my witness.

Arm. 'Las good man!

Tec. [Aside to Org.] Let craft with courtesy a while confer,
Revenge proves its own executioner.

Org. Dark sentences are for Apollo's priests;
I am not Ædipus.

Tec. My hour is come;
Cheer up the king; farewell to all.—O Sparta,
O Lacedemon! 180

[Exit.

Arm. If prophetic fire
Have warmed this old man's bosom, we might construe
His words to fatal sense.

Ith. Leave to the powers
Above us, the effects of their decrees;
My burthen lies within me: servile fears
Prevent no great effects.—Divine Calantha!

Arm. The gods be still propitious. 190

[Exeunt Ithocles and Armostes.

Org. Something oddly
The book-man prated, yet he talk'd it weeping;

When, if I faint to speak—I must be silent. [Exit.

SCENE II

A Room in Bassanes’ House.

Enter Bassanes, Grausis, and Phulas.

Bass. Pray, use your recreations, all the service
I will expect is quietness amongst ye;
Take liberty at home, abroad, at all times,
And in your charities appease the gods
Whom I, with my distractions, have offended.

Grau. Fair blessings on thy heart!

Phu. Here’s a rare change!
My lord, to cure the itch, is surely gelded;
The cuckold in conceit, hath cast his horns. [Aside

Bass. Betake you to your several occasions;
And, wherein I have heretofore been faulty,
Let your constructions mildly pass it over;
Henceforth I’ll study reformation,—more,
I have not for employment.

86
The Broken Heart

Grau. O, sweet man!
Thou art the very Honeycomb of Honesty.

Phu. The Garland of Good-will.—Old lady, hold up
Thy reverend snout, and trot behind me softly,
As it becomes a mule of ancient carriage.

[Exeunt Grausis and Phulas.

Bass. Beasts, only capable of sense, enjoy
The benefit of food and ease with thankfulness:
Such silly creatures, with a grudging, kick not Against the portion nature hath bestowed;
But men, endowed with reason, and the use
Of reason, to distinguish from the chaff
Of abject scarcity, the quintessence,
Soul, and elixir of the earth’s abundance,
The treasures of the sea, the air, nay heaven,
Repining at these glories of creation,
Are verier beasts than beasts; and of those beasts
The worst am I. I, who was made a monarch
Of what a heart could wish for, a chaste wife,
Endeavoured, what in me lay, to pull down
That temple built for adoration only,
And level’t in the dust of causeless scandal:—
But, to redeem a sacrilege so impious,
Humility shall pour before the deities
I have incensed, a largess of more patience
Than their displeased altars can require.
No tempests of commotion shall disquiet
The calms of my composure.
ACT IV. SC. 2.

The Broken Heart

Enter Orgilus.

Org. I have found thee,
   Thou patron of more horrors than the bulk
   Of manhood, hooped about with ribs of iron,
   Can cram within thy breast: Penthea, Bassanes,
   Cursed by thy jealousies, more, by thy dotage,
   Is left a prey to words.

Bass. Exercise
   Your trials for addition to my penance;
   I am resolv'd.

Org. Play not with misery
   Past cure: some angry minister of fate hath Deposed the empress of her soul, her reason,
   From its most proper throne; but—what's the miracle
   More new, I, I have seen it, and yet live!

Bass. You may delude my senses, not my judgment;
   'Tis anchored into a firm resolution;
   Dalliance of mirth or wit can ne'er unfix it:
   Practise yet further.

Org. May thy death of love to her,
   Damn all thy comforts to a lasting fast
   From every joy of life! thou barren rock,
   By thee we have been split in ken of harbour.

Enter Penthea, with her hair loose, Ithocles, Philema, and Christalla.

Sister, look up, your Ithocles, your brother
The Broken Heart

ACT IV. SC. 2.

Speaks to you; why d'you weep? dear, turn not from me.—
Here is a killing sight; lo, Bassanes,
A lamentable object!

Org. Man, dost see it?
Sports are more gamesome; am I yet in merriment?
Why dost not laugh?

Bass. Divine and best of ladies,
Please to forget my outrage; mercy ever
Cannot but lodge under a roof so excellent:
I have cast off that cruelty of frenzy
Which once appeared imposture, and then juggled
To cheat my sleeps of rest.

Org. Was I in earnest?

Pen. Sure, if we were all sirens, we should sing pitifully,
And 'twere a comely music, when in parts
One sung another's knell; the turtle sighs
When he hath lost his mate; and yet some say
He must be dead first: 'tis a fine deceit
To pass away in a dream! indeed, I've slept
With mine eyes open, a great while. No falsehood
Equals a broken faith; there's not a hair
Sticks on my head but, like a leaden plummet,
It sinks me to the grave: I must creep thither;
The journey is not long.

Ith. But thou, Penthea,
Hast many years, I hope, to number yet,
Ere thou canst travel that way.
ACT IV. SC. 2.

Bass. Let the sun first
   Be wrapped up in an everlasting darkness,
   Before the light of nature, chiefly formed
   For the whole world's delight, feel an eclipse
   So universal!

Org. Wisdom, look ye,
   Begins to rave!—art thou mad too, antiquity?

Pen. Since I was first a wife, I might have been Mother to many pretty prattling babes;
   They would have smiled when I smiled; and certain
   I should have cried when they cried:—truly, by
   My father would have picked me out a husband
   And then my little ones had been no bastards;
   But 'tis too late for me to marry now,
   I am past child-bearing; 'tis not my fault.

Bass. Fall on me, if there be a burning Ætna,
   And bury me in flames! sweets, hot as sulphur
   Boil through my pores:—affliction hath in store
   No torture like to this.

Org. Behold a patience!
   Lay by thy whining gray dissimulation,
   Do something worth a chronicle; show justice
   Upon the author of this mischief; dig out
   The jealousies that hatched this thraldom first
   With thine own poniard: every antick rapture
   Can roar as thine does.

Ith. Orgilus, forbear.
The Broken Heart

Bass. Disturb him not; it is a talking motion Provided for my torment. What a fool am I    120
     To bawdy passion! ere I’ll speak a word,
     I will look on and burst.

Pen. I loved you once.                       [To Orgilus.

Org. Thou didst, wronged creature: in despite of malice,
     For it I’ll love thee ever.

Pen. Spare your hand;
     Believe me, I’ll not hurt it.

Org. My heart too.

Pen. Complain not though I wring it hard: I’ll kiss it;
     Oh, ’tis a fine soft palm!—hark, in thine ear;  130
     Like whom do I look, prithee?—nay, no whispering,
     Goodness! we had been happy; too much happiness—
     Will make folk proud, they say—but that is he—

     [Pointing to Ithocles.

And yet he paid for’t home; alas! his heart
Is crept into the cabinet of the princess;
We shall have points and bride-laces. Remember,
When we last gathered roses in the garden,
I found my wits; but truly you lost yours,
That’s he, and still ’tis he.

     [Again pointing to Ithocles.

Ith. Poor soul, how idly                     140
     Her fancies guide her tongue!

Bass. Keep in, vexation,
     And break not into clamour.              [Aside.

Org. She has tutored me;

What you shall still admire: 'tis wonderful,
'Tis super-singular, not to be match'd;
Yet, when I've done't, I've done't:—ye shall all thank me.  [Exit.

Arm. The sight is full of terror.

Ith. On my soul
Lies such an infinite clog of massy dulness,
As that I have not sense enough to feel it.—
See, uncle, the angry thing returns again,
Shall's welcome him with thunder? we are haunted,
And must use exorcism to conjure down
This spirit of malevolence.

Enter Nearchus and Amelus.

Arm. Mildly, nephew.

Near. I come not, sir, to chide your late disorder;
Admitting that th' inurement to a roughness
In soldiers of your years and fortunes, chiefly,
So lately prosperous, hath not yet shook off
The custom of the war, in hours of leisure;
Nor shall you need excuse, since you're to render
Account to that fair excellence, the princess,
Who in her private gallery expects it
From your own mouth alone: I am a messenger
But to her pleasure.

Ith. Excellent Nearchus,
Be prince still of my services, and conquer,
Without the combat of dispute; I honour you.
The Broken Heart

But since her blood was seasoned by the forfeit
Of noble shame, with mixtures of pollution,
Her blood—'tis just—be henceforth never heightened
With taste of sustenance! starve; let that fulness
Whose pleurisy hath fever'd faith and modesty—
Forgive me; Oh! I faint.

[Falls into the arms of her attendants.

Arm. Be not so wilful,
Sweet niece, to work thine own destruction.

Ith. Nature
Will call her daughter, monster!—what! not eat?
Refuse the only ordinary means
Which are ordained for life? be not, my sister,
A murtheress to thyself.—Hear'st thou this, Bassanes?

Bass. Foh! I am busy; for I have not thoughts
Enough to think: all shall be well anon.
'Tis tumbling in my head; there is a mastery
In art, to fatten and keep smooth the outside;
Yes, and to comfort up the vital spirits
Without the help of food, fumes or perfumes,— Perfumes or fumes. Let her alone; I'll search out
The trick on't. [Aside.

Pen. Lead me gently; heavens reward ye.
Griefs are sure friends; they leave, without control,
Nor cure nor comforts for a leprous soul.

[Exit, supported by Christalla and Philema.

Bass. I grant ye; and will put in practice instantly

ACT IV. SC. 2.

What you shall still admire: 'tis wonderful,
'Tis super-singular, not to be match'd;
Yet, when I've done't, I've done't:—ye sh
thank me.

Arm. The sight is full of terror.

Ith. On my soul
Lies such an infinite clog of massy dulness,
As that I have not sense enough to feel it.—
See, uncle, the angry thing returns again,
Shall's welcome him with thunder? we are ha
And must use exorcism to conjure down
This spirit of malevolence.

Enter Nearchus and Amelus.

Arm. Mildly, nephew.

Near. I come not, sir, to chide your late disorder;
Admitting that th' inurement to a roughness
In soldiers of your years and fortunes, chiefly,
So lately prosperous, hath not yet shook off
The custom of the war, in hours of leisure;
Nor shall you need excuse, since you're to ren
Account to that fair excellence, the princess,
Who in her private gallery expects it
From your own mouth alone: I am a messen
But to her pleasure.

Ith. Excellent Nearchus,
Be prince still of my services, and conquer,
Without the combat of dispute; I honour you

ACT IV. SC. 2.

Near. The king is on a sudden indisposed,
Physicians are call’d for; ’twere fit, Armostes,
You should be near him.

Arm. Sir, I kiss your hands.

[Exeunt Ithocles and Armostes.

Near. Amelus, I perceive Calantha’s bosom
Is warm’d with other fires than such as can Take strength from any fuel of the love
I might address to her; young Ithocles,
Or ever I mistake, is lord ascendant
Of her devotions; one, to speak him truly,
In every disposition nobly fashioned.

Ame. But can your highness brook to be so rivalled,
Considering th’ inequality of the persons?

Near. I can, Amelus; for affections, injured
By tyranny, or rigour of compulsion,
Like tempest-threatened trees unfirmly rooted,
Ne’er spring to timely growth: observe, for instance,
Life-spent Penthea, and unhappy Orgilus.

Ame. How does your grace determine?

Near. To be jealous
In public, of what privately I’ll further;
And, though they shall not know, yet they shall find it.

[Exeunt.
ACT IV. SC. 3. The Broken Heart

SCENE III

An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter the King, led by Hemophil and Groneas, followed by Armostes, with a box, Crotolon, and Prophilus. The King is placed in a chair.

Amyc. Our daughter is not near?
Arm. She is retired, sir,
   Into her gallery.
Amyc. Where's the prince our cousin?
Pro. New walk'd into the grove, my lord.
Amyc. All leave us
   Except Armostes, and you, Crotolon;
   We would be private.
Pro. Health unto your majesty.

[Exeunt Prophilus, Hemophil, and Groneas.

Amyc. What! Tecnicus is gone?
Arm. He is, to Delphos;
   And to your royal hands presents this box.
Amyc. Unseal it, good Armostes; therein lie
   The secrets of the oracle; out with it;

      [Armostes takes out the scroll.
   Apollo live our patron! Read, Armostes.

Arm. 'The plot in which the Vine takes root
The Broken Heart

ACT IV. SC. 3.

Begins to dry from head to foot;
The stock, soon withering, want of sap
Doth cause to quail the budding grape:
But, from the neighbouring Elm, a dew 20
Shall drop, and feed the plot anew.

Amyc. That is the oracle; what exposition
    Makes the philosopher?

Arm. This brief one, only.

'The plot is Sparta, the dried Vine the king;
The quailing grape his daughter; but the thing
Of most importance, not to be revealed,
Is a near prince, the Elm: the rest concealed.

'TECHNICUS.'

Amyc. Enough; although the opening of this riddle
    Be but itself a riddle, yet we construe 30
How near our labouring age draws to a rest:
But must Calanthe quail too? that young grape
Untimely budded! I could mourn for her;
Her tenderness hath yet deserved no rigour
So to be crost by fate.

Arm. You misapply, sir,
    With favour let me speak it, what Apollo
Hath clouded in hid sense; I here conjecture
Her marriage with some neighbouring prince, the dew
Of which befriending Elm shall ever strengthen 40
Your subjects with a sovereignty of power.

ACT IV. SC. 3.

_Crot._ Besides, most gracious lord, the pith of oracles
Is to be then digested, when the events
Expound their truth, not brought as soon to light
As uttered; Truth is child of Time; and herein
I find no scruple, rather cause of comfort,
With unity of kingdoms.

_Amyc._ May it prove so,
For weal of this dear nation!—Where is Ithocles?—
Armostes, Crotolon, when this wither'd Vine
Of my frail carcase, on the funeral pile,
Is fired into its ashes, let that young man
Be hedged about still with your cares and loves;
Much owe I to his worth, much to his service.—
Let such as wait come in now!

_Arm._ All attend here!

_Enter Ithocles, Calantha, Prophilus, Orgilus, Euphranea, Hemophil and Groneas._

_Cal._ Dear sir! king! father!
_Ith._ Oh, my royal master!
_Amyc._ Cleave not my heart, sweet twins of my life's solace,
With your fore-judging fears: there is no physic
So cunningly restorative to cherish
The fall of age, or call back youth and vigour,
As your consents in duty; I will shake off
This languishing disease of time, to quicken
The Broken Heart

ACT IV. SC.

Fresh pleasures in these drooping hours of sadness:
Is fair Euphranea married yet to Prophilus?

Crot. This morning, gracious lord.

Org. This very morning;
Which, with your highness' leave, you may observe too.

Our sister looks, methinks, mirthful and sprightly, as if her chaster fancy could already Expound the riddle of her gain in losing
A trifle, maids know only that they know not.
Pish! prithee, blush not; 'tis but honest change
Of fashion in the garment, loose for straight,
And so the modest maid is made a wife.

Shrewd business—is't not, sister?

Euph. You are pleasant.

Amyc. We thank thee, Orgilus, this mirth becomes thee.
    But wherefore sits the court in such a silence?
    A wedding without revels is not seemly.

Cal. Your late indisposition, sir, forbade it.

Amyc. Be it thy charge, Calantha, to set forward
    The bridal sports, to which I will be present;
    If not, at least consenting: mine own Ithocles,
    I have done little for thee yet.

Ith. You have built me,
    To the full height I stand in.

Cal. Now or never!—
    May I propose a suit?

Amyc. Demand, and have it.
ACT IV. SC. 3.

The Broken Heart

Cal. Pray, sir, give me this young man, and no further
Account him yours, than he deserves in all things
To be thought worthy mine; I will esteem him
According to his merit.

Amyc. Still thou'rt my daughter,
Still grow'st upon my heart. Give me thine hand
[To Ithocles.

Calanthia, take thine own; in noble actions
Thou'lt find him firm and absolute. I would not Have parted with thee, Ithocles, to any
But to a mistress, who is all what I am.

Ith. A change, great king, most wished for, cause the same.

Cal. Thou art mine.—Have I now kept my word?

Ith. Divinely.

Org. Rich fortunes guard, the favour of a princess,
Rock thee, brave man, in ever crowned plenty!—
You are minion of the time; be thankful for it.
Ho! here's a swing in destiny—apparent!
The youth is up on tiptoe, yet may stumble. [Aside.

Amyc. On to your recreations!—Now convey me
Unto my bed-chamber; none on his forehead
Wear a distemper'd look.

All. The gods preserve you!

Cal. Sweet, be not from my sight.

Ith. My whole felicity!

Amyc's is carried out.—Exeunt all but Ithocles, detained by Orgilus.
The Broken Heart

Org. Shall I be bold, my lord?

Ith. Thou canst not, Orgilus.

Call me thine own; for Prophilus must henceforth
Be all thy sister’s; friendship, though it cease not
In marriage, yet is oft at less command
Than when a single freedom can dispose it.

Org. Most right, my most good lord, my most great lord,
My gracious princely lord, I might add royal.

Ith. Royal! A subject royal?

Org. Why not, pray sir?

The sovereignty of kingdoms, in their nonage,
Stood to desert, not birth; there’s as much merit
In clearness of affection, as in puddle
Of generation; you have conquered love
Even in the loveliest: if I greatly err not,
The son of Venus hath bequeathed his quiver
To Ithocles to manage, by whose arrows
Calantha’s breast is opened.

Ith. Can it be possible?

Org. I was myself a piece of a suitor once,
And forward in preferment too; so forward
That, speaking truth, I may without offence, sir,
Presume to whisper, that my hopes, and (hark ye!)
My certainty of marriage stood assured
With as firm footing (by your leave), as any’s,

Now, at this very instant—but—

Ith. ’Tis granted:

IOI
And for a league of privacy between us,
Read o'er my bosom and partake a secret;
The princess is contracted mine.

Org. Still, why not?
I now applaud her wisdom: when your kingdom
Stands seated in your will, secure and settled,
I dare pronounce you will be a just monarch;
Greece must admire and tremble.

Ith. Then the sweetness
Of so imparadised a comfort, Orgilus!
It is to banquet with the gods.

Org. The glory
Of numerous children, potency of nobles,
Bent knees, hearts paved to tread on!

Ith. With a friendship
So dear, so fast as thine.

Org. I am unfitting
For office; but for service——

Ith. We'll distinguish
Our fortunes merely in the title; partners
In all respects else but the bed.—

Org. The bed?
Forefend it, Jove's own jealousy!—till lastly
We slip down in the common earth together.
And there our beds are equal; save some monument
To show this was the king, and this the subject—

[Soft sad Music.]

102
The Broken Heart

ACT IV. SC. 3.

List, what sad sounds are these? extremely sad ones.

Ith. Sure from Penthea's lodgings.

Org. Hark! a voice too.

A Song (within).

'Oh, no more, no more, too late
Sighs are spent; the burning tapers
Of a life as chaste as fate,
Pure as are unwritten papers,
Are burnt out: no heat, no light
Now remains; 'tis ever night.
Love is dead; let lovers' eyes,
Lock'd in endless dreams,
Th' extremes of all extremes.

Ope no more, for now Love dies.
Now Love dies,—implying
Love's martyrs must be ever, ever dying.'

Ith. Oh my misgiving heart!

Org. A horrid stillness
Succeeds this deathful air; let's know the reason:
Tread softly; there is mystery in mourning.

[Exeunt.]
ACT IV. SC. 4. The Broken Heart

SCENE IV.

Apartment of Penthea in the Same.

Penthea discovered in a Chair, veiled; Christalla and Philema at her feet mourning. Enter two Servants, with two other Chairs, one worked by clockwork.

Enter Ithocles and Orgilus.

1 Serv. (aside to Org.) 'Tis done; that on her right hand.

Org. Good! begone

Ith. Soft peace enrich this room!

Org. How fares the lady?

Phil. Dead.

Chris. Dead!

Phil. Starved!

Chris. Starved!

Ith. Me miserable!

Org. Tell us

How parted she from life?

Phil. She called for music,

And begged some gentle voice to tune a farewell To life and griefs; Christalla touched the lute I wept the funeral song.

Chris. Which scarce was ended,
The Broken Heart

ACT IV. SC. 4.

But her last breath sealed up these hollow sounds:
‘Oh, cruel Ithocles, and injured Orgilus!’
So down she drew her veil, so died.

Ith. So died ! 20

Org. Up ! you are messengers of death, go from us ;

[Christalla and Philema rise.

Here’s woe enough to court without a prompter.
Away ; and,—hark ye ! till you see us next,
No syllable that she is dead.—Away,
Keep a smooth brow.—

[Exeunt Christalla and Philema.

Ith. Mine only sister ! [My lord.—

Another is not left me.

Org. Take that chair,
I’ll seat me here in this : between us sits
The object of our sorrows ; some few tears
We’ll part among us : I perhaps can mix
One lamentable story to prepare them.—
There, there ! sit there, my lord !

Ith. Yes, as you please.

[Sits down, the chair closes upon him.

What means this treachery?

Org. Caught ! you are caught,
Young master ! ’tis thy throne of coronation,
Thou fool of greatness ! See I take this veil off ;
Survey a beauty withered by the flames
Of an insulting Phaeton, her brother.

Ith. Thou mean’st to kill me basely ?

105
ACT IV. SC. 4.

The Broken Heart

Org. I foreknew
The last act of her life, and trained thee hither,
To sacrifice a tyrant to a turtle.
You dreamt of kingdoms, did you! how to bosom
The delicacies of a youngling princess!
How with this nod to grace that subtle courtier,
How with that frown to make this noble tremble,
And so forth; whilst Penthea's groans and tortures,
Her agonies, her miseries, afflictions,
Ne'er touched upon your thought! as for my injuries,
Alas! they were beneath your royal pity;
But yet they lived, thou proud man, to confound thee!
Behold thy fate; this steel! [Draws a dagger.

Ith. Strike home! A courage
As keen as thy revenge shall give it welcome,
But prithee faint not; if the wound close up,
Tent it with double force, and search it deeply.
Thou look'st that I should whine, and beg compassion,
As loath to leave the vainness of my glories;
A statelier resolution arms thy confidence,
To cozen thee of honour; neither could I,
With equal trial of unequal fortune,
By hazard of a duel; 'twere a bravery
Too mighty for a slave intending murder.
On to the execution, and inherit
A conflict with my horrors.

106
The Broken Heart

Org. By Apollo,
Thou talk'st a goodly language! for requital
I will report thee to thy mistress richly; 70
And take this peace along: some few short minutes
Determined, my resolves shall quickly follow
Thy wrathful ghost; then, if we tug for mastery,
Penthea's sacred eyes shall lend new courage.
Give me thy hand—be healthful in thy parting
From lost mortality! thus, thus I free it. [Stabs him.
Ith. Yet, yet, I scorn to shrink.
Org. Keep up thy spirit:
I will be gentle even in blood; to linger
Pain, which I strive to cure, were to be cruel. 80
[Stabs him again.
Ith. Nimble in vengeance, I forgive thee. Follow
Safety, with best success; oh, may it prosper!—
Penthea, by thy side thy brother bleeds;
The earnest of his wrongs to thy forced faith.
Thoughts of ambition, or delicious banquet
With beauty, youth, and love, together perish
In my last breath, which on the sacred altar
Of a long looked for peace—now—moves—to heaven.
[Dies.

Org. Farewell, fair spring of manhood! henceforth welcome
Best expectation of a noble sufferance! 90
I'll lock the bodies safe, till what must follow
ACT IV. SC. 4.

The Broken Heart

Shall be approved.—Sweet twins, shine stars for ever!—
In vain they build their hopes, whose life is shame,
No monument lasts but a happy name!

[Locks the door and exit.]
ACT V

A Room in Bassanes' House

Enter Bassanes.

Bass. Athens—to Athens I have sent, the nursery
   Of Greece for learning, and the fount of knowledge;
   For here, in Sparta, there's not left amongst us
   One wise man to direct; we are all turn'd madcaps.
   'Tis said Apollo is the god of herbs,
   Then certainly he knows the virtue of them:
   To Delphos I have sent too; if there can be
   A help for nature, we are sure yet.

Enter Orgilus.

Org. Honour
   Attend thy counsels ever.

Bass. I beseech thee,
   With all my heart, let me go from thee quietly;
   I will not ought to do with thee, of all men.
The Broken Heart

ACT V. SC. 1.

The doubles of a hare,—or, in a morning,
Salutes from a splay-footed witch,—to drop
Three drops of blood at th' nose just, and no more,—
Croaking of ravens, or the screech of owls,
Are not so boding mischief, as thy crossing
My private meditations: shun me, prithee;
And if I cannot love thee heartily,
I'll love thee as well as I can.

Org. Noble Bassanes,
Mistake me not.

Bass. Phew! then we shall be troubled.
Thou wert ordained my plague—heaven make me thankful,
And give me patience too, heaven, I beseech thee!

Org. Accept a league of amity: for henceforth,
I vow, by my best genius, in a syllable,
Never to speak vexation; I will study
Service and friendship, with a zealous sorrow
For my past incivility towards you.

Bass. Hey-day, good words, good words! I must believe 'em,
And be a coxcomb for my labour.

Org. Use not
So hard a language; your misdoubt is causeless:
For instance, if you promise to put on
A constancy of patience, such a patience
As chronicle or history ne'er mentioned,
As follows not example, but shall stand

I10
The Broken Heart

A wonder, and a theme for imitation,
The first, the index pointing to a second,
I will acquaint you with an unmatched secret,
Whose knowledge to your griefs shall set a period.

_Bass._ Thou canst not, Orgilus; 'tis in the power
Of the gods only; yet, for satisfaction,
Because I note an earnest in thine utterance,
Unforced, and naturally free, be resolute,
The virgin-bays shall not withstand the lightning
With a more careless danger, than my constancy
The full of thy relation; could it move
Distraction in a senseless marble statue,
It should find me a rock: I do expect now
Some truth of unheard moment.

_Org._ To your patience
You must add privacy, as strong in silence
As mysteries locked up in Jove's own bosom.

_Bass._ A skull hid in the earth a treble age,
Shall sooner prate.

_Org._ Lastly, to such direction
As the severity of a glorious action
Deserves to lead your wisdom and your judgment,
You ought to yield obedience.

_Bass._ With assurance
Of will and thankfulness.

_Org._ With manly courage
Please then to follow me.

_Bass._ Where'er, I fear not.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II

A State Room in the Palace.

A Flourish. Enter Euphranea, led by Groneas and Hemophil; Prophilus, led by Christalla and Philema; Nearchus supporting Calantha; Crotolon and Amelus.

Cal. We miss our servant Ithocles, and Orgilus;
On whom attend they?

Crot. My son, gracious princess,
Whisper'd some new device, to which these revels
Should be but usher; wherein I conceive
Lord Ithocles and he himself are actors.

Cal. A fair excuse for absence: as for Bassanes,
Delights to him are troublesome; Armostes
Is with the king?

Crot. He is.

Cal. On to the dance!
Cousin, hand you the bride; the bridegroom must be Entrusted to my courtship. Be not jealous,
Euphranea; I shall scarcely prove a temptress.—
Fall to our dance.

Music. Nearchnus dances with Euphranea, Prophilus with Calantha, Christalla with Hemophil, Philema with Groneas.

They Dance the First Change; during which Armostes enters.

Arm. [whispers Calantha.] The king your father’s dead.
Cal. To the other change.
Arm. Isn’t possible?

They Dance the Second Change.

Enter Bassanes.

Bass. [whispers Calantha.] Oh madam!
    Penthea, poor Penthea’s starved.
Cal. Beshrew thee!
    Lead to the next.
Bass. Amazement dulls my senses.

They Dance the Third Change.

Enter Orgilus.

Org. [whispers Calantha.] Brave Ithocles is murdered, murdered cruelly.
Cal. How dull this music sounds! Strike up more

The Broken Heart

Our footings are not active like our heart,
Which treads the nimbler measure.

Org. I am thunderstruck!

The Last Change.

Cal. So! let us breathe a while.— [Music ceases.
—Hath not this motion
Raised fresher colours on our cheeks?

Near. Sweet princess,
A perfect purity of blood enamels
The beauty of your white.

Cal. We all look cheerfully:
And cousin, 'tis methinks a rare presumption
In any who prefer our lawful pleasures
Before their own sour censure, to interrupt
The custom of this ceremony bluntly.

Near. None dares, lady.

Cal. Yes, yes; some hollow voice delivered to me
Now that the king was dead.

Arm. The king is dead:
That fatal news was mine; for in mine arms
He breath'd his last, and with his crown bequeathed you
Your mother's wedding ring; which here I tender.

Crot. Most strange!

Cal. Peace crown his ashes! We are queen then.

Near. Long live Calantha! Sparta's sovereign queen!
The Broken Heart

All. Long live the queen!

Cal. What whispered Bassanes?

Bass. That my Penthea, miserable soul,
     Was starved to death.

Cal. She is happy; she hath finished
     A long and painful process.—A third murmur
     Pierced mine unwilling ears.

Org. That Ithocles
     Was murthered; rather butchered, had not bravery
     Of an undaunted spirit, conquering terror,
     Proclaimed his last act triumph over ruin.

Arm. How! murthered!

Cal. By whose hand?

Org. By mine; this weapon
     Was instrument to my revenge; the reasons
     Are just, and known; quit him of these, and then
     Never lived gentleman of greater merit,
     Hope or abiliment to steer a kingdom.

Crot. Fye, Orgilus!

Euph. Fye, brother!

Cal. You have done it?

Bass. How it was done, let him report, the forfeit
     Of whose allegiance to our laws doth covet
     Rigour of justice; but, that done it is,
     Mine eyes have been an evidence of credit
     Too sure to be convinced. Armostes, rend not Thine arteries with hearing the bare circumstances
     Of these calamities; thou hast lost a nephew,

A niece, and I a wife: continue man still; Make me the pattern of digesting evils, Who can outlive my mighty ones, not shrinking 80 At such a pressure as would sink a soul Into what's most of death, the worst of horrors. But I have sealed a covenant with sadness, And enter'd into bonds without condition, To stand these tempests calmly; mark me, nobles, I do not shed a tear, not for Penthea!

Excellent misery!

Cal. We begin our reign With a first act of justice! thy confession, Unhappy Orgilus, dooms thee a sentence; 90 But yet thy father's or thy sister's presence Shall be excus'd. Give, Crotolon, a blessing To thy lost son; Euphranea, take a farewell, And both be gone.

Crot. [to Org.] Confirm thee, noble sorrow In worthy resolution!

Euph. Could my tears speak, My griefs were slight.

Org. All goodness dwell amongst ye! Enjoy my sister, Prophilus; my vengeance 100 Aim'd never at thy prejudice.

Cal. Now withdraw.

With honourable mention, make thy choice
Of what death likes thee best; there's all our bounty,
But to excuse delays, let me, dear cousin,
Intreat you and these lords see execution,
Instant, before you part.

Near. Your will commands us.

Org. One suit, just queen, my last: vouchsafe your clemency,
That by no common hand I be divided
From this my humble frailty.

Cal. To their wisdoms

Who are to be spectators of thine end,
I make the reference: those that are dead,
Are dead; had they not now died, of necessity
They must have paid the debt they owed to nature,
One time or other.—Use dispatch, my lords; we'll suddenly prepare our Coronation.

[Exeunt Calantha, Philema, and Christalla.

Arm. 'Tis strange, these tragedies should never touch on
Her female pity.

Bass. She has a masculine spirit:
And wherefore should I pule, and, like a girl,
Put finger in the eye? let's be all toughness,
Without distinction betwixt sex and sex.

Near. Now, Orgilus, thy choice?

Org. To bleed to death.

Arm. The executioner?
ACT V. SC. 2.

The Broken Heart

Org. Myself, no surgeon;
    I am well skilled in letting blood. Bind fast
This arm, that so the pipes may from their conduits
Convey a full stream; here's a skilful instrument:

Only I am a beggar to some charity
To speed me in this execution,
By lending th' other prick to th' other arm,
When this is bubbling life out.

Bass. I am for you,
    It most concerns my art, my care, my credit;
Quick, fillet both his arms.

Org. Gramercy, friendship!
Such courtesies are real, which flow cheerfully
Without an expectation of requital.
Reach me a staff in this hand.—[They give him a staff.]—If a proneness,

Or custom in my nature, from my cradle,
Had been inclined to fierce and eager bloodshed,
A coward guilt, hid in a coward quaking,
Would have betrayed me to ignoble flight,
And vagabond pursuit of dreadful safety:

    150
But look upon my steadiness, and scorn not
The sickness of my fortune; which, since Bassanes
Was husband to Penthea, had lain bed-rid.
We trifle time in words:—thus I show cunning
In opening of a vein too full, too lively.

    [Pierces the vein with his dagger.

    118
Act V. Sc. 2.

The Broken Heart

Arm. Desperate courage!

Near. Honourable infamy!

Hem. I tremble at the sight.

Gron. 'Would I were loose!

Bass. It sparkles like a lusty wine new broach'd;

The vessel must be sound from which it issues.

Grasp hard this other stick—I'll be as nimble—

But prithee, look not pale—Have at ye! stretch out

Thine arm with vigour, and unshak[en] virtue.

[Opens the vein.

Good! oh, I envy not a rival, fitted

To conquer in extremities: this pastime

Appears majestical; some high-tuned poem,

Hereafter, shall deliver to posterity

The writer's glory, and his subject's triumph.

How is't, man?—droop not yet.

Org. I feel no palsies.

On a pair-royal do I wait in death:

My sovereign, as his liegeman; on my mistress,

As a devoted servant; and on Ithocles,

As if no brave, yet no unworthy enemy:

Nor did I use an engine to entrap

His life, out of a slavish fear to combat

Youth, strength, or cunning; but for that I durst not

Engage the goodness of a cause on fortune,

By which his name might have outfaced my vengeance.

Oh, Tecnicus, inspired with Phœbus' fire!

When feeble man is bending to his mother,
The dust he was first framed on, thus he totters—

Bass. Life's fountain is dried up.

Org. So falls the standard
Of my prerogative in being a creature!
A mist hangs o'er mine eyes, the sun's bright splendour
Is clouded in an everlasting shadow:
Welcome, thou ice, that sit'st about my heart,
No heat can ever thaw thee. [Dies.

Bass. He hath shook hands with time; his funeral urn
Shall be my charge; remove the bloodless body.
The Coronation must require attendance;
That past, my few days can be but one mourning.

[Exeunt.

SCENE III

A Temple.

An Altar, covered with white: two lights of virgin wax upon it.—Recorders, during which enter attendants, bearing Ithocles on a Hearse, in a rich robe, with a Crown on his head; and place him on the one side of the Altar. After which, enter Calantha in white.
The Broken Heart

ACT V. SC. 3.
crowned, attended by Euphranea, Philema, and Christalla, also in white: Nearchus, Armostes, Crotolon, Prophilus, Amelus, Bassanes, Hemophil, and Groneas.

Calantha kneels before the Altar, the Ladies kneeling behind her; the rest stand off. The Recorders cease during her devotions. Soft music. Calantha and the rest rise, doing obeisance to the Altar.

Cal. Our orisons are heard; the gods are merciful. Now tell me, you, whose loyalties pay tribute To us your lawful sovereign, how unskilful Your duties, or obedience is, to render Subjection to the sceptre of a virgin, Who have been ever fortunate in princes Of masculine and stirring composition? A woman has enough to govern wisely Her own demeanours, passions, and divisions. A nation warlike, and enured to practice Of policy and labour, cannot brook A feminate authority; we therefore Command your counsel, how you may advise us In choosing of a husband, whose abilities Can better guide this kingdom.

Near. Royal lady,
Your law is in your will.

121
ACT V. SC. 3.

Arm. We have seen tokens
    Of constancy too lately, to mistrust it.
Crot. Yet, if your highness settle on a choice,
    By your own judgment both allowed and liked of,
    Sparta may grow in power, and proceed
    To an increasing height.
Cal. Hold you the same mind?
Bass. Alas, great mistress! reason is so clouded
    With the thick darkness of my infinite woes,
    That I forecast nor dangers, hopes, or safety.
    Give me some corner of the world to wear out
    The remnant of the minutes I must number,
    Where I may hear no sounds, but sad complaints
    Of virgins, who have lost contracted partners;
    Of husbands howling that their wives were ravished
    By some untimely fate; of friends divided
    By churlish opposition; or of fathers
    Weeping upon their children's slaughtered carcasses;
    Or daughters, groaning o'er their fathers' hearses,
    And can I dwell there, and with these keep consort
    As musical as theirs. What can you look for
    From an old, foolish, peevish, doting man,
    But craziness of age?

Cal. Cousin of Argos.
Near. Madam.
Cal. Were I presently
    To choose you for my lord, I'll open freely
What articles I would propose to treat on,
Before our marriage.

ear. Name them, virtuous lady.

ul. I would presume you would retain the royalty
   Of Sparta in her own bounds; then in Argos
   Armostes might be viceroy; in Messene
   Might Crotolon bear sway; and Bassanes—— ass. I, queen? alas! what I?

ul. Be Sparta's marshal;
The multitudes of high employments could not But set a peace to private griefs. These gentlemen,

Groneas and Hemophil, with worthy pensions,
Should wait upon your person, in your chamber:
I would bestow Christalla on Amelus,
She'll prove a constant wife; and Philema
Should into Vesta's temple.

ass. This is a testament!
It sounds not like conditions on a marriage.

ear. All this should be performed.

al. Lastly, for Prophilus;
   He should be, cousin, solemnly invested
   In all those honours, titles, and preferments
   Which his dear friend, and my neglected husband,
   Too short a time enjoyed.

ro. I am unworthy
   To live in your remembrance.

uph. Excellent lady!
ACT. V. SC. 3

Near. Madam, what means that word, 'neglected husband?'

Cal. Forgive me:—now I turn to thee, thou shadow
Of my contracted lord! Bear witness all,
I put my mother's wedding-ring upon
His finger; 'twas my father's last bequest.

[Places a ring on the finger of Ithocles.

Thus I new-marry him, whose wife I am;
Death shall not separate us. Oh, my lords,
I but deceived your eyes with antick gesture,
When one news straight came huddling on another,
Of death! and death! and death! still I danced forward:

But it struck home, and here, and in an instant.
Be such mere women, who, with shrieks and outcries,
Can vow a present end to all their sorrows,
Yet live to [court] new pleasures, and outlive them:
They are the silent griefs which cut the heart-strings;
Let me die smiling.

Near. 'Tis a truth too ominous.

Cal. One kiss on these cold lips, my last!—[Kisses Ithocles.]

—crack, crack—

Argos now 's Sparta's king. Command the voices 90
Which wait at th' altar, now to sing the song
I fitted for my end.

Near. Sirs, the song!
The Broken Heart

ACT V. SC. 3.

Dirge.

Cho. Glories, pleasures, pomps, delights, and ease,
   Can but please
   [The] outward senses, when the mind
   Is [or] untroubled, or by peace refined.

First voice. Crowns may flourish and decay,
       Beauties shine, but fade away.

Second. Youth may revel, yet it must Lie down in a bed of dust

Third. Earthly honours flow and waste,
       Time alone doth change and last.

Cho. Sorrows mingled with contents, prepare
       Rest for care;
       Love only reigns in death; though art
       Can find no comfort for a Broken Heart.

Arm. Look to the queen!

Bass. Her 'heart is broke' indeed.
       Oh, royal maid, 'would thou hadst missed this part!
       Yet 'twas a brave one. I must weep to see
       Her smile in death.

Arm. Wise Tecnicus! thus said he:

'When youth is ripe, and age from time doth part,
   The lifeless Trunk shall wed the Broken Heart.'

'Tis here fulfilled.

Near. I am your king.
ACT V. SC. 3.

All. Long live
Nearchus, king of Sparta!
Near. Her last will Shall never be digressed from; wait in order
Upon these faithful lovers, as becomes us.—
The counsels of the gods are never known,
Till men can call the effects of them their own.

[Exeunt.]
WHERE noble judgments and clear eyes are fixed
To grace endeavour, there sits truth, not mixed
With ignorance; those censures may command
Belief, which talk not, till they understand.
Let some say, This was flat; some, *Here the scene
Fell from its height*; another, *That the mean
Was ill observed, in such a growing passion,
As it transcended either state or fashion.*
Some few may cry, *'Twas pretty well, or so,
But*—— and there shrug in silence: yet we know 10
Our writer's aim was, in the whole, addressed
Well to deserve of ALL, but please the BEST:
Which granted, by th' allowance of this strain,
The BROKEN HEART may be piecèd up again.

NOTES

ACT I., Sc. I.

1. i. 23. Broached = steeped. It also means transfixed, as witness Marlowe's Lust's Dominion, 1. i., 'I'll broach them if they do.'

1. i. 31. Hymenean bond — the bond of Hymen, the God of Marriage.

1. i. 45. Aconite = wolf's-bane or monk's-hood, not 'the deadly nightshade,' as some assert, which belongs to the genus Solanum. Aconite by the Elizabethans was supposed to be of such deadly virulence and so hasty in its effects that in 2 Henry IV. iv. iv. Shakespeare says —

'The united vessel of their blood
Mingled with venom of suggestion
As force perforce, the age will pour it in,
Shall never leak, though it do work as strong
As aconitum or rash gunpowder.'

The ancients believed it to be the creation of Hecate from the foam of Cerberus when Hercules dragged him up from Hades to present him to Eurystheus in his twelfth and last labour.

1. i. 55. Importune. Note the falling of the accent on the penultimal syllable.

1. i. 64. Savours not humanity. Note the elision of the preposition 'of.' Cf. All's Well that Ends Well, III. v. 104, 'Some precepts worthy the note.'

1. i. 117. Vesta's sacred fires. Sacred because those who tended them were vowed to perpetual virginity.
NOTES

The Broken Heart

1. i. 120. On fitting fortune=On fortune that is worthy of being accepted.

1. i. 130. Contents=satisfaction.

1. i. 135. He has just grounds direct him. Another instance of ellipsis. Cf. Julius Caesar, i. i. 3, ‘You ought not walk’; also Merchant of Venice, ii. vii. 43, ‘To come view fair Portia.’

1. i. 143. Change fresh airs...about them. They may travel where they please but their griefs are their constant companions.

ACT I., Sc. II.

1. ii. 73. The chaplet. The victor in a campaign received a chaplet of laurel or ivy; also the conqueror at the Olympic Games. To that custom the passage here refers. Cf. also Horace, Odes, i. i. 29, ‘Me doctarum hederæ præmia frontium. Diis miscet superis.’

1. ii. 79. Provincial garland. The reference seems to be to the fact that the garland was composed of Provencal roses. Hamlet makes the same allusion (III. ii. 285) in his remark to Polonius. ‘Would not this, sir, and a forest of feathers—if the rest of my fortunes turn Turk with me—with two Provincial roses on my razed shoes,—get me a fellowship in a cry of players, sir?’ In this connection Douce would have us read ‘roses of Provins,’ for while, as he asserts, there is no evidence to show that Provence was ever celebrated for its roses, it is well known that Provins, in La Basse Brie, about forty miles from Paris, was formerly very celebrated for the growth of this flower. It is probable (continues Douce) that this kind of rose, which in our old herbals is called the ‘Great Holland’ or ‘Provence Rose,’ was imported into this country both from Holland and France, from which latter country the Dutch may at first have procured it.

1. ii. 87. On the issue of a willing mind=On the purposes or determined actions of a mind desirous to show its loyalty.

1. ii. 98. Applause runs madding—i.e., applause expends itself in
The Broken Heart

undiscriminating eulogy. Cf. Milton, Paradise Lost, vi. 210, 'The madding wheels of brazen chariots razed'; also Gray's fine phrase, 'Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife.'

1. ii. 100. Leader-on. This is a image drawn from the actions of the coryphæus, or leader among the priests of Bacchus, the God of Wine, during the celebration of the Dionysia of Greece or the Bacchanalia of Rome.

1. ii. 106. Slight. May either mean subtle deeds or rebuffs; it may also mean, 'I would not so belittle myself.'

1. ii. 170. Learn to reel, thrum, or trim a lady's dog. Reel = to wind the thread from off the distaff; also to thrum = to cover with small tufts like the thrum of the loom. This was the way in which many poodles were clipped in those days, so that the line may also be read in the sense of 'thrum' being to trim a dog so as to leave the tufts on it resembling the 'thrum's of the loom.

1. ii. 175. Corncutters were then a branch of the barber-surgeons.

1. ii. 186. 'Instead of following them . . . us.' Cf. here Henryson's Robin and Makyn.

Scene III.

1. iii. 9. Foredooming destiny. Rendering my fate sure.

1. iii. 13. Such a crooked by-way. Run in such a devious path, or in a path so alien to honour truth.

1. iii. 22. At odds with nature. Has much the same meaning as Shakespeare's famous phrase, 'Out of suits with fortune' (As You Like It, i. ii. 258).

1. iii. 53. Must stand my privilege = must plead my excuse for being where I am.

1. iii. 57. In niceness = in needless coyness. Cf. Cymbeline, iii. iv. 158, 'Fear and niceness the handmaids of all women.'

1. iii. 72. But a brother . . . grave; that is to say that Ithocles, as far as the case of Penthea and Orgilus went, had been more cruel than the grave.

135
NOTES

I. iii. 85. So much blissfulness = so much happiness in marriage. Note the proleptic use of the word—'offered me for the future so much blissfulness.'

I. iii. 110. On the tenters. The tenters were frames studded with hooks on which cloth was hung to dry after being dyed.

I. iii. 117. His Oratory. Ford seldom lapses into anachronisms, but here is one. An Oratory in Sparta at this period would have been somewhat of an anomaly.

I. iii. 130. Northern blast. The north was regarded as the quarter whence all storms came. It was also the one where the great supernatural powers had their seat.

I. iii. 147. The grammates = the elements of language.

ACT II., Sc. I.

II. i. 1. Dammed up = blocked up.

II. i. 10. Suddenly = without delay.

II. i. 13. Close packets = closed packets; letters that are sealed and cannot be read.

II. i. 14. Spruce Springal. A brisk growing youth; sometimes written Springald and Springold; probably from the old French springaller and the Dutch springael. Cf. Faery Queen, v. v. 6—

'Among the rest which in that space befell
   There came two springals of full tender years';

also in Latimer's Sermons, 'Joseph when he was sold to Potiphar, that great man, was a faire young Springall.'

II. i. 28. Coll = embrace; clasp round the neck; probably from Fr. Collée, signifying such an embrace; also written cull. Cf. Grim the Colter, 'Kissing and colling all the livelong night'; also 'She smiled, he kissed and kissing culled her too' (Herrick).

II. i. 44. No woman but can fall and doth or would. This line means that there is no woman who, if she but can fall, doth fall, or if she cannot fain would fall. This is one of those 'conceits' which are so plentiful in Cowley.

II. i. 80. Spangled with pearls of transparent dew. Note that pearls here is a dissyllable.

II. i. 109. The whiteness of my name=the spotlessness of my reputation.

II. i. 118. Somewhat too inward= somewhat too retired.

II. i. 131. Mews=sea-mews. Cf. Tempest, II. ii. 176, 'Young sea-mews from the rocks.'

II. i. 143. A chopping boy. See quotation of this passage by Sir Walter Scott in his letter to George Ellis; Lockhart's Life of Scott.

II. i. 157. Caroches=the old form of coaches.

II. i. 187. My crossing you=my opposition to you.

II. i. 192. I am no new-come-to-I=I am not one who lately has taken up this way of life.

ACT II., SC. II.

II. ii. 3. Sealed dove. A dove with its eyes closed wholly or partially, by passing a fine thread through them. It was a common notion that if a dove was let loose with its eyes so closed it would mount upward till it fell from sheer exhaustion. Cf. Ben Jonson, Cataline, III. i.

II. ii. 8. Morality, applied ... dance. Morality applied to opportune instances keeps the character on a higher plane of action, according to which acts of moral self-denial become pleasant.

II. ii. 35. A union so devout=a union so truly sacred and representative of the highest desires of the contracting parties.

II. ii. 61. Any service ... current=any service that may seem to you to be valuable at the present juncture of your affairs.

II. ii. 65. Admit the motion=favour the appeal.
NOTES

The Broken Heart

II. ii. 91. Demur=delay, procrastination.
II. ii. 103. Sinews of concord. A metaphor taken from the strings of a musical instrument which were in those days made of the sinews of animals. Concords here mean harmony.

ACT II., SC. III.

II. iii. 5. This line is very corrupt. I have therefore adopted Dyce's reading, and inserted 'once' after alacrity as tending to make the meaning clear.
II. iii. 9. The word 'little' has been inserted into the text here in order to preserve the rhythm.
II. iii. 11. Inquisitive of secrecies=one who invites confidences.
II. iii. 19. Account with=occupy myself with.
II. iii. 24. School-terms=phrases used among the philosophers and the learned.
II. iii. 37–39. The text here is so corrupt as practically to defy any emendation that does not demand greater liberties being taken with it than are warrantable. I have decided, therefore, to leave it in its imperfect form, as the sense can easily be guessed at.
II. iii. 43. Feeding the hungry appetite...food. Refers to the 'Bermecide Banquet' in the Arabian Nights.
II. iii. 155. Aches. This word was pronounced as a disyllable.
II. iii. 170. Excellentest Ithocles. Note here the use of the superlative degree of comparison with a word superlative. Cf. Winter's Tale, III. ii. 180, 'To taste of thy most worst.'
II. iii. 178. Our reckonings may fall even=our good deeds counterbalance our evil.

ACT III., SC. I.

III. i. 6. Inferred a consequence. Entailed an effect, i.e., was the cause of a certain effect.
III. i. 9. A new-hatch'd execution=a newly conceived plan.
The Broken Heart

III. i. 15. Such doubts are causeless—such doubts are without reason.

III. i. 42. But real honour. Note the ‘real’ is here to be read as a dissyllable, as also in line 55.

III. i. 48. Intrenching on just laws—by trenching on just laws.

III. i. 62. Moderators. Presidents or umpires in debate. The name is still preserved in the Scottish Ecclesiastical Supreme Courts, where the Moderator of the General Assembly and of Presbytery is the umpire or regulator of discussion.

III. i. 68. He prays your Gravity. Gravity here is a title of honour, as ‘Excellency’ among us.

III. i. 69. Sift and bolt. An image taken from grinding corn. Sifting and bolting are equivalent to refining.

III. i. 70. Pith and circumstance—the meaning and context. Cf. the Soliloquy of Hamlet, ‘Enterprises of great pith and moment’; also Webster’s Duchess of Malfi, ‘The pith and circumstance of noble enterprise.’

III. i. 77. Delphos, otherwise Delphi, a town of Phocis, and situated in a valley at the south-west side of Mount Parnassus. It was famous for a temple of Apollo and for the oracle of that deity there, which was consulted by votaries from all parts of the world.

ACT III., SC. II.

III. ii. 161. Clod of trade. I am no clod without a soul above trade.

III. ii. 191. Me grims, firks, and melancholies—the blues, tricks, and depression. The word megrim was frequently used in Elizabethan days to signify a kind of ennui or tedium vitae. In Hick Scorner Imagination remarks, ‘Also I said that in my head I had the megrim’; while in Lord Bristol’s play, Elvira, Francisca replies to Don Julio’s question where his sister was, ‘In her chamber, sir, not very well; she’s taken with a megrim.'
NOTES

The Broken Heart

Firk means a trick or a piece of roguery, and there is a verb, to firk, meaning to cheat, as, for instance, in Ram Alley, 'Sir, leave this firk of law, or by this light I'll give your throat a slit.'

Melancholies, a melancholy air, was affected by the beaux of Queen Elizabeth's time as a refined mark of gentility, and Ben Jonson in Every Man in his Humour says, 'I will be more proud and melancholy and gentlemanlike than I have been, I'll ensure you.'

ACT III., Sc. III.

III. iii. 46. Our Court...relish=-another instance of a monosyllable being used as a disyllable to eke out the rhythm; 'more' usually being pronounced as a monosyllable, here it is a disyllable.

III. iii. 71. Flow in Athens...engrossed. Those inventions which abound in Athens, thou hast there acquired.

III. iii. 74. We shall be debtor to thy conceit=-we shall be under obligation to thy ingenuity. Cf. the Mystery Play of the Four Elements (line 45), in which the 'Messenger' says, 'Every man after his fantasy will write his conceit,' but in As You Like It (v. ii. 50), Rosalind, addressing Orlando, uses it to mean 'birth or extraction,' viz., 'I know you are a gentleman of good conceit.'

III. iii. 84. Well worthy of your knowledge. There is a proleptic sense introduced into the word 'knowledge,' viz., 'Well worthy that you should know more of him and his virtues in the future.'

ACT III., Sc. IV.

III. iv. 7. That licence...check. However we may read this line it is rough and inharmonious. I would suggest a reversion to the quarto reading, 'That licence sovranty without check doth hold.'

III. iv. 9. How resolve you? = What course do you decide to adopt?

III. iv. 13. Could wish him thrift. A curious use of thrift. The real meaning is thriving or success or prosperity. Shakespeare uses the word in this sense. Cf. Merchant of Venice, i. i. 175.
The Broken Heart

III. iv. 14. Inleague. The Elizabethan writers were very fond of such words as this, which differ little in meaning from the simpler form. 'League' and 'inleague' are just the same. 'In' and 'en' and 'un' were all so used. Cf. 'mesh' and 'emmesh,' 'rank' and enrank,' 'free' and 'enfree.'

ACT III., SC. V.

III. v. 12. Glass of life. This figure was taken from the hour-glasses which were always placed on the pulpits in Elizabethan and Jacobean times. When the sand ran out the clergyman was supposed to conclude. Some, however, were wont to tip the glass round, and, as was said, 'take another glass.'

III. v. 43. Speak, I enjoy it. Weber would exchange the 'I' for 'and,' but the sense is not thereby improved.

III. v. 118. Revel in Elysium. This is a jarring conception. Cole-ridge suggested 'To rest me in Elysium,' and Charles Lamb 'To rest now in Elysium.' Either would be preferable to Weber's reading.

ACT IV., SC. I.

IV. i. 13. The after wit . . . tallied. The knowledge that comes after the event is useless.

IV. i. 50. Liberal contents = versatile nature.

IV. i. 55. Pleasures of rare object = pleasures whose marvellous character. Cf. Dekker, Old Fortunatus, III. ii. 125.

IV. i. 121. There's more divinity . . . majesty. This passage has a suggestion of the familiar one in Hamlet IV. v. 121, 'There's such divinity doth hedge a king,' &c.

IV. i. 134. Discretion . . . bounds. Cf. i Henry IV., v. 4, 'The better part of valour is discretion.'
NOTES

The Broken Heart

IV. i. 151. Suppling patience = of a soothing patience.

IV. i. 154. The hurts . . . deadly. The meaning here is somewhat obscure; it is that 'the hurts which have been mortal are now about to produce that death which they had entailed throughout.'

ACT IV., SC. II.

IV. ii. 17. The Garland of Good Will. The title of a well-known collection of popular songs of the Caroline Age, printed in 1604, the initials of the author being T. D., supposed by some to be for 'Thomas Dekker'; but that can scarcely be correct. In Rowley's Match at Midnight, ii. i., Bloodhound says, 'These are out of ballads; she has all the Garland of Good Will by heart.'

IV. ii. 66. Here's a killing sight. Does this whole scene, but particularly this speech of Ithocles, not remind one of the similar scene in Hamlet, IV. v.? In fact, the one scene seems based on the other.

IV. ii. 126. Spare your hand = give me your hand.

IV. ii. 187. A mastery in art = a skill in art.

IV. ii. 230. Lord ascendant. A metaphor drawn from astrology, the star in the ascendant being the star in the eastern, or 'rising quarter,' of the heavens. See the Introduction to Astrology by the celebrated William Lilly.

ACT IV., SC. III.

IV. iii. 16. The plot = the plot of ground.

IV. iii. 19. Cause to quail = cause to droop. Cj. Cymbeline, V. v. 149, 'My false spirits quail to remember.'

IV. iii. 99. Firm and absolute = undaunted and resolute.

IV. iii. 107. Minion of the time = the favourite of the age.

ACT IV., SC. IV.

Stage-direction—Chair worked by clockwork. These chairs were in great demand in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and were used as instruments of torture. Some of these "engines" are still extant. In Spain there used to be one owned by the Inquisition which stabbed the individual to death who seated himself in it. A chair such as is described in the text is still visible in the Royal Museum, Copenhagen.
The Broken Heart

IV. iv. 58. Tent it. A phrase in older surgery denoting the operation of widening the orifice of a wound.

IV. iv. 59. Thou look'st = you expected.

IV. iv. 72. Determined = terminated, ended. The line means, 'After some few short minutes, my resolves,' &c.

IV. iv. 92. Approved = tried. The meaning of the line is, 'I shall lock up the bodies safely, until I see what is to be done.'

ACT V., Sc. I.

v. i. 13. I will not ought to do with thee. Note the elision of the auxiliary 'have.' The meaning of Bassanes is, 'I do not desire to have anything to do with thee of all men.'

v. i. 14. Doubles of a hare. The tortuous course pursued by a hare in trying to escape the dogs.

v. i. 43. Unmatched secret = an unparalleled secret.

ACT V., Sc. II.

v. ii. 26. Our footings = our feet.

v. ii. 36. Rare presumption = extraordinary or excessive presumption.

v. ii. 37. Prefer our lawful . . . censure = who arraign our lawful pleasure at the bar of their own dour censure.

v. ii. 67. Hope or abiliment to steer a kingdom = expectation or administrative power to govern the country.

v. ii. 114. From this my humble frailty = from this frail shell of our common humanity.
NOTES

V. ii. 135. I am a beggar to some charity. I must be a suppliant to some charitably disposed person to assist me, &c.

V. ii. 150. Vagabond pursuit of dreadful safety. In seeking safety through fear, in flight.

V. ii. 187. So falls . . . creature. So passes my superiority over the brute creation in being a reason-gifted creature, when my reason grows dim.

V. ii. 194. Shook hands with time = taken farewell of time.

ACT V., SC. III.

V. iii. 13–15. Command your counsel . . . kingdom. Had Fo written in the days of Elizabeth he never would have allowed the conclusion of this speech to appear, as it would have seemed reflection on the administrative abilities of the Virgin-queen.

V. iii. 89–92. On this catastrophe Charles Lamb says, 'I don't know in any play a catastrophe so grand, so solemn, so surprising as this. . . . The expression of this transcendent scene almost bears me to Calvary and the Cross, and I seem to perceive some analogy between the scenical sufferings which I am here contemn plating and the real agonies of that final completion to which dare no more than hint a reference' (Specimens of Dramatic Author.
